Gen, Grant's New Move. For the last month the natient neo nle of this suffering nation, have been, beace be brought back again, may we go on in the paths our fore-fathers mark-wd out to ba, and all sectional predju-dices and difficulties he removed. [Loud applause.] In response to loud calls, Hon. Rich-ard Vaux came forward and made a most telling and capital speech, which was received with lond bursts of ap-olause. He said it was not their analmost daily, assured that "Grant was about to make a new move," which vould, when executed, cause the rebellion to immediate topple and vanish into thin, air. That inexorable officer, whose chief merit consists in human slaughter, commenced his campaign against Richlause. He said it was not their ap-lause he wanted, but he wished them uond with no less than two hundred and fifty thousand men. Since then he has probably, received the same numper of reinforcements, but instead of ublican party and their incapability of restoring the Union. The more victor-Richmond being in our possession, the people are again informed that Grant ies that are won and the more men that are killed places peace still further of than it was before. The speaker severe by handled the remarks of an Abolifion orator, who had said that "all Demois about to make "another move." A half a million of men and the entire resources of a profligate administration; which is exhausting the blood and treasure of the country to inbe," He wished that that individual was present this hight to take a look upon the hundreds of uplified faces, and say whether these men who earned their bread by daily toil were honest or not. The speaker's allusion to the re-sult of the selection in Delaware was resure its own continuance in power, have that he has already moved. But how celved with loud and long continued

Ex-Governor Bigler also spoke. Hc. having spoken before, made his remarks ivery short. He had simply to say that they had his most heartfelt sympathics for the respect they had tendered the great man who had come all the way from New York to help them in Penn-sylvania in this great 'struggle. The struggle was no ordinary one, and he called upon them to consider it well, and rally with a firth and determined months.

And rally with a firm and determined heart to the support of the only true principles under which the glorious Union can live. [Applause.] After the performance of one or two airs by the band the vast crowd separa. ted and quietly retired to their homes.
