

The Daily Post.

PITTSBURGH, WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 26, 1864.

FOR PRESIDENT: GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN, OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT: GEORGE H. PENDLETON, OF OHIO.

FOR PRESIDENT: ROBERT L. JOHNSON, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: WILLIAM W. BENTLEY, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: THOMAS M. COVINGTON, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: PATRICK MCGOVIN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN M. BRIDGES, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN A. ANDERSON, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN W. BROWN, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FOREIGN INTERVENTION.

There will be a grand rally of the Democracy at Meadville, Pa. There will be a grand rally of the Democracy at Meadville, Pa.

Imposing Upon Woman. We understand that the tax receivers at the Court House, are in the habit of folding the Abolition ticket in all tax receipts intended for the soldiers in the army.

Members of the Democratic State Central Committee give the most encouraging accounts from the different localities of the State.

Hon. John L. Dawson. We understand that the official returns from the Westmoreland, Indiana and Fayette districts give 1800 majority over the soldiers' vote for Dawson over Feller.

Hon. C. L. Ward, Chairman of State Central Committee, and Hon. William Bigler are in the city, and stopping at the St. Charles Hotel.

Mr. Editor: Will you give place for the following extracts in your valuable paper, so that the Woolly-headed Abolition squawkers and "Copperhead Extremists" may reconcile them with "To whom it may concern"?

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

"I take the oath to-day with no mental reservation and with no purpose to construe the Constitution or laws by any hypothetical rules."

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, &c., &c., nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law."

"Let Forts Warren and Lafayette and the gentlemen who ratify 'my little white flag' in relation to the great rights covered and enumerated by these provisions of the Constitution."

"Suppose you go to war, you cannot fight unless you have arms and ammunition on both sides, and no gain on either; you cease fighting, the identical questions, as to terms of intercourse, are upon you."

"I have no purpose directly or indirectly to interfere with the military service of the soldiers in the States when it exists. I believe I have no lawful right to do so, and I have no intention to do so."

"The power conferred to me will be used to hold, convey and possess the property and places belonging to the Government, and to collect the duties and imports, but beyond what may be necessary for these objects there will be no invasion, anywhere."

"It is pleasantly and excitedly anticipated and hardy efforts of an excited political canvasser, to be able to occasionally indulge in this of pleasure. Read the following touch from yesterday's Gazette."

Grand Rally at Meadville, Pa.

There will be a grand rally of the Democracy at Meadville, Pa. There will be a grand rally of the Democracy at Meadville, Pa.

Imposing Upon Woman. We understand that the tax receivers at the Court House, are in the habit of folding the Abolition ticket in all tax receipts intended for the soldiers in the army.

Members of the Democratic State Central Committee give the most encouraging accounts from the different localities of the State.

Hon. John L. Dawson. We understand that the official returns from the Westmoreland, Indiana and Fayette districts give 1800 majority over the soldiers' vote for Dawson over Feller.

Hon. C. L. Ward, Chairman of State Central Committee, and Hon. William Bigler are in the city, and stopping at the St. Charles Hotel.

Mr. Editor: Will you give place for the following extracts in your valuable paper, so that the Woolly-headed Abolition squawkers and "Copperhead Extremists" may reconcile them with "To whom it may concern"?

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

"I take the oath to-day with no mental reservation and with no purpose to construe the Constitution or laws by any hypothetical rules."

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, &c., &c., nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law."

"Let Forts Warren and Lafayette and the gentlemen who ratify 'my little white flag' in relation to the great rights covered and enumerated by these provisions of the Constitution."

"Suppose you go to war, you cannot fight unless you have arms and ammunition on both sides, and no gain on either; you cease fighting, the identical questions, as to terms of intercourse, are upon you."

"I have no purpose directly or indirectly to interfere with the military service of the soldiers in the States when it exists. I believe I have no lawful right to do so, and I have no intention to do so."

"The power conferred to me will be used to hold, convey and possess the property and places belonging to the Government, and to collect the duties and imports, but beyond what may be necessary for these objects there will be no invasion, anywhere."

"It is pleasantly and excitedly anticipated and hardy efforts of an excited political canvasser, to be able to occasionally indulge in this of pleasure. Read the following touch from yesterday's Gazette."

"But our confidence is so strong in the inherent power of Truth, and of the healthful effect of the press of the nation, that we are confident that we will not be long in having our views on this subject made known to the people."

"When the reader remembers that the Gazette has not contained a word of editorial truth, since N. B. Craig left it in 1844, he can appreciate the honor of the way who has been the foregoing."

Particulars of the Capture of the Roanoke.

The following is a statement of the capture of the Roanoke, from the report of Captain Peiper, of the brigantine Mathilde, from Captain Dow, of the captured steamer.

The Roanoke left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

Particulars of the Capture of the Roanoke.

The following is a statement of the capture of the Roanoke, from the report of Captain Peiper, of the brigantine Mathilde, from Captain Dow, of the captured steamer.

The Roanoke left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

Particulars of the Capture of the Roanoke.

The following is a statement of the capture of the Roanoke, from the report of Captain Peiper, of the brigantine Mathilde, from Captain Dow, of the captured steamer.

The Roanoke left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

Particulars of the Capture of the Roanoke.

The following is a statement of the capture of the Roanoke, from the report of Captain Peiper, of the brigantine Mathilde, from Captain Dow, of the captured steamer.

The Roanoke left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

Particulars of the Capture of the Roanoke.

The following is a statement of the capture of the Roanoke, from the report of Captain Peiper, of the brigantine Mathilde, from Captain Dow, of the captured steamer.

The Roanoke left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.

The Roanoke had left Havana for New York on her regular day, and proceeded on her course until evening in the usual manner, without anything remarkable occurring.

Captain Drew retired to his cabin about 10 o'clock at night. At that time he was awakened by the Captain's order to get up, and in a few minutes he was completely in the possession of the vessel.

On arriving off the island they attempted to enter the harbor, but were prevented by the presence of the Mathilde, which was then in the harbor.