Mass Meeting in Allegheny.

Another Outpouring of the Democracy.

The Greatest Enthusiasm.

Speeches by the Hon. Robt. L. Johnson, J. W. Hewett and Wm. H. Witt.

Another regular meeting of the Democracy was held last evening in the Diamond, Allegheny. The announcement that the Hon. Wm. H. Witt would deliver one of his eloquent speeches attracted large numbers of persons from all parts, and consequently the crowd was immense.

Mr. Witt delivered an able and characteristic address, which was most telling effect on the numerous audience. The address of Mr. Witt was received with thunderous applause. He spoke for a considerable length of time, and was frequently interrupted by cheers of the audience.

Mr. Johnson delivered an able and characteristic address, which was most telling effect on the numerous audience. The address of Mr. Johnson was received with thunderous applause. He spoke for a considerable length of time, and was frequently interrupted by cheers of the audience.

Mr. Hewett delivered an able and characteristic address, which was most telling effect on the numerous audience. The address of Mr. Hewett was received with thunderous applause. He spoke for a considerable length of time, and was frequently interrupted by cheers of the audience.

After a brief request that the audience should preserve as much order as possible in order that his voice might be heard throughout the entire assembly without overlooking his physical strength which had been so severely tested during the campaign, he proceeded to compare the present state of the western part of Pennsylvania with what it was a short time ago.

He stated that not long since he delivered an address in this city when a man could not express his political opinions without great personal risk. But the Democracy have at length been aroused to a sense of their duty, and they are determined to assert their rights whatever be the consequences.

We have come to the conclusion that we will exercise all our rights and privileges as citizens, no matter what Mr. Lincoln may think or do in the matter. On this occasion we assemble together to lament over the wreck which the Republican party have brought upon the country, and devise and adopt measures to remedy the frightful condition of affairs in the country.

Previous to the outbreak of this war and its fearful consequences of ruin and devastation, it was a question of debate which party could administer justice to the people in a more satisfactory manner, and guard and preserve their rights more effectually. But since the accession of Mr. Lincoln to power, this question has been placed beyond all discussion, and it is now no longer a subject of controversy.

The question is now in what manner we will exercise our rights and privileges as citizens, no matter what Mr. Lincoln may think or do in the matter. On this occasion we assemble together to lament over the wreck which the Republican party have brought upon the country, and devise and adopt measures to remedy the frightful condition of affairs in the country.

When we started, animated by patriotic reasons, we elected Abraham Lincoln to the chair, in order that the Union might be restored. But a great many doubted his ability to do so, and since then his opinion has been frequently vindicated. He stated that he felt a disappointed man, and he had ever declared sentiments so radically different from those which we now see him uttering.

SECOND EDITION.

Late News from the Front.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The steamer Keyport arrived here early this morning, having on board Gen. Geo. H. Lee, chief of staff, Gen. Barnard and Rawlins and Col. Citta, who have been to the front.

The Daniel Webster reports that loud cannonading was heard yesterday morning on Gen. Butler's front before the left. She brought up forty rebel officers from Col. Down, who were delivered to the provost marshal.

A gentleman who for twelve months has been attempting to get away from the South succeeded several days ago in reaching our lines and is now in this city. He occupied a responsible position under the Confederate Government and had abundant opportunities for learning the real condition of affairs in that section. He represents that the condition is not as we are led to believe.

From Gen. Butler.
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Times correspondent with Butler's army details how two of our brigades fell when Gen. Weitzel reached the Williamsburg road and found a wide open space and a disconnected road on either side of the highway. The place seemed favorable for a demonstration and the works were only feebly mounted.

The Soldier's Vote.
HARRISBURG, Oct. 31.—The official report received at the Secretary's office up to this date is as follows: Abolition, 17,888; Democratic, 638; Abolition majority, 13,666.

A Day of Thanksgiving in Dixie.
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—In the latest rebel newspaper extracted in the possession of Jeff. Davis, naming the 10th of November as a Thanksgiving day in his dominions. In this declaration, while claiming that "thanks are due for the many signal victories with which our arms have been blessed, and for the unimpairment of which the troops of the rebellion have been inspired, at the same time acknowledges that our enemy have merited and received gracious chastisement, and that "large localities of the country have been swept over and held in the arms of the United States."

The Rebel Accounts of Grant's last movements are summed up in a terrible manner. The rebel loss at twenty-five men. The death of rebel General Dearing is announced.

The Late Advance of Butler's New York, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to the Tribune from the Army of the James, dated the 28th, says of the Democracy made by Butler's forces: "The Army of the Potomac, under the command of our extreme right, and began occupying the country along the right of the Dupont road, and from that point northwardly to the Charles City road. Considerable desultory fighting occurred here during the day, without further effect than to show the strength of the enemy. Meanwhile, the Eighteenth Corps, accompanied by Kent's cavalry, moved out toward the enemy late in the afternoon, with varying success. Kalmon's brigade of colored troops succeeded in carrying one of the enemy's redoubts, and capturing the guns while Fairchild's and Hill's brigades were roughly handled in endeavoring to take a strong position held by the enemy directly on the Williamsburg road in the neighborhood of Seven Pines.

Darkness came on too soon to permit us to avail ourselves of the advantage gained by the capture of the redoubt on the enemy's left, and our troops were ordered to retire, which they did at daylight, and affairs started again next morning. The result on the other side of the James, however, led Gen. Grant to direct the withdrawal of our forces to their original position. Matters have resumed their usual quiet here. The losses of the Tenth Army Corps will amount to some 2000 men, or thereabouts, and the Eighteenth to probably double that amount. Half of them, however, were captured by the enemy.

Great Excitement in Buffalo.

Buffalo, Oct. 31.—The city was patrolled by the military in large force, and by the police, last night. Companies were stationed on the docks, but no attempt was made to land the military were all out, yesterday attending Gen. Bidwell's funeral, frustrated the rebels' plan.

From Army of the Potomac.
HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, October 30.—Since our army returned to its old quarters, Friday, nothing of importance has happened. All our troops retained the rebel cavalry followed us closely, but did not do much. They made repeated attempts to charge, but were repulsed with heavy loss. As far as obtained our losses reach 1800.

The Second Corps, which did the most fighting, lost ten officers killed and thirty-one wounded. The Cavalry division is stated to have lost about 2000 men. The loss of the "Army" was, however, some 2000 men more. We have 238 prisoners and four battle-flags.
