

The Daily Post.

THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 17, 1864.

Making it Pay. Among the many rascals from the Democratic party, who in the name of patriotism have become Abolitionists, Ben Butler is commonly called the best.

On Monday evening Butler made a speech in New York, in which he announced that the 'bonuses given to our soldiers hereafter,' should consist in the lands conquered from the rebels.

General Sheridan has certainly withdrawn from Winchester. His farthest Southern outpost is now but four miles south of Winchester, at a place called Keamsport.

The Confederates are said to be again massing on the Weldon Railroad, and an attack is feared. The Southern newspapers state that Admiral Porter's iron clads are being brought up to the James, and are now anchored just below the Dutch Gap Canal.

General Canby was shot some time ago by a guerrilla whilst sailing up White River, Arkansas. He is thought to have been mortally wounded.

Sherman has no communication with Washington. There is very little doubt that he evacuated Atlanta in the latter part of last week. Where he went is not known.

Water and its Duties. The Philadelphia Age concludes an editorial as follows: 'In one word, winter is upon us, and it is our duty to remember the poor, in a practical manner.'

The Duty of the Democracy. The Chicago Times, the leading Democratic paper of the West, concludes an article as follows in relation to the invitation of the Abolitionists to support Mr. Lincoln's Administration: 'It wishes the cordial support of true Union men, but as slavery is a concern of the Democracy it does not care to strew the path of the vote strengthener or weaken the confederacy by the attraction or repulsion of Southern sentiment or from the Union.'

The telegraph announces the appointment of E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War, to the head of the Supreme Bench, to fill the place of the late Chief Justice Taney and of Benjamin F. Butler to the War Department, in the place of Mr. Stanton.

We have read the speech delivered by General Butler, in New York City, on Monday evening, and we are glad to say that it is not at all as savage as the telegraph reported it to be; in fact it was quite moderate for its author.

The Confederate steamer Florida has arrived at Fortress Monroe with the Wachouset.

Candy as a Dessert. Pure sugars and candies do not injure the teeth, except indirectly by their indigestion. An exciting acidity of the stomach or dyspepsia, will vary with the kind of food, or drink, or beverage, if extravagantly used.

Almost a Tragedy. There was some excitement occasioned at the Louisville theater last night by the shooting of a man, which came very near resulting in the death of Mr. James, the leading man of the company.

The Japanese War in Japan. The latest advices from Japan represent that the French, English and Dutch, joined by a vessel chartered by the American Minister, had gone to attack the forces of the Yocoon, and compel him to open the inland sea. When the war was declared, the British Minister at London was informed that the British vessel of war was building at New York, and which would be ready to sail in a few days.

Late Southern News. From the Richmond Examiner Nov. 11. There is a great excitement in some of the Southern States.

FROM THE SHENANDOAH. A Fight impending. HEADQUARTERS SIXTH ARMY CORPS, in the Field, Near Kearnsport, Va., Nov. 17, 1864. General Sheridan's change of position from Cedar Bluffs to the Shenandoah Valley, has induced the rebels to advance down the valley.

There is now living in the Nineteenth century hospital, in Winchester, Corporal James S. Bennett, of Company D, Second Michigan Cavalry, who on Monday morning, August 18, 1862, was captured by the rebels near Berryville.

Launch of the First Iron-Clad on the Pacific. It has been announced by telegraph that on the 14th of November 1864, the iron-clad monitor Cananche was launched at San Francisco.

The Potato Crop. It is very gratifying to learn, as we do by increasing proofs, that a crop as important as the potato, is turning out so abundantly and so well.

The Great Gale on Lake Erie. The Buffalo Courier of this morning says that the most severe gales ever known on the lake Erie commenced on Wednesday last.
