lucination born of an insane passion for the young surgeon; a passion unreciprocated by him, and stimulated to an 'extraordinary degree by jealousy of her daughter. This theory was eventually sustained by the jury. Madame Trumpy was unconditionally acquitted; and Dr. Demme, acquitted, on the charge of pose. This would have left no doubt of the cause of his death of Asil was, it was difficult to explain his possession of strychinine. Demme asserted that Trumpy had been been been as the constantinopie, and that he was frequently talking about the purchase of poison there as fact, which no one else, not even madame Trumpy, seems to have recollected. There was thus a possibility that Trumpy had committed suicide, and upone this aground Demme, was acquitted, but at the same time ordered to pay half the expenses of the Trial. Madame Trumpy, against whom the evidence was slightly was acquitted succonditionally. The many points. The poison used was the same. The victim was in both cases depening upon the many accurated of his murder for medical satendance, and in both cases it was equally, impossible to feel much sympathy for his late. There is something specially disagreeable about being poisoned by your doctor, he has so many, chances of administering poison even without the possibility And from her long and flowing dress Escaped a bare and snowy foot;

Whose step upon the earth did press
Esker's weet snow flake, soft and mute;
And then from slumber soft and warm,
Like a young spirit fresh from heaven,
She bowed that young sadmatchless form,
And humbly prayed to be forgiven. Oh. God! if souls so pure as these Need daily mercy from thy throne—
If she upon her bended knees,
Our holiest and dearest one—
She, with a face so clear and bright,
We deen her some stray child of light;
If she, with those soft eyes and tears,
Day after day in her young years,
Must kneel and pray for grace from Thee.
How hardly, if she win not heaven,
Will our wild errors be forgiven? THE TRUMPY-DEMME CASE. Exciting News from England and the Continent-Acquittal of all Accused Parties. The Trumpy Demme case, of which a sketch was recently given, has been concluded by the acquittal of both mad ame Trumpy and Dr. Demme. The la dy, it will be remembered, accused herself as well as Dr. Demme of poisoning her husband in order to secure a creditor. he has so many chances of administering poison even without the possibility of being conclusively shown to have done so. Thus circumstances in this concluded by the acquittal of both mad ame Trumpy and Dr. Demme. The la dy, it will be remembered, accused herself as well as Dr. Demme of poisoning her husband in order to secure a greater freedom of intercourse to themselves in the indulgence of a criminal passion. This strange feature of the case was made still more revolting by the fact that, while Dr. Demme denied the criminal passion as postively as the murder, he was actually the betrothed husband of Madame Trumpy's only daughter. The conduct of Madame Trumpy in prison gave greater and doubt the soundness of her intellect. Cool and collected while on the stand, she was no sooner left to herself in her cell than soundness of her intellect. Cool and collected while cu the stand, she was no sooner left to herself in her cell than she fell into a singular state of ecstasy somewhat like that of the famous convultionnaires of BL Medard: (In this state she saw visions both sweet and horrible, and labored under a wonderful variety of hallucinations.
