Among a certain class of self-important people there is a peculiar feeling of contempt attached to all physicians that advertise and treat the disease, anamed in this card, (Paivara Bissasser), why this should be, they nor no one else can tell. Are they not aware that all physicians treat diseases of every denomination, in fast solicit, just the very diseases that are so obcovious to there trey refined parties. I suppose they would not let one of their family go to a party that has devoted years for their benefit, because he advertises the fast, and their family physician sayshe is a humbug so he can get the case. Often he has almost deprived the party of his life. He comes at last to the physician that advertises—how else are they to know! Are they not aware that Sir FOR THE HOLIDAYS,

For the Post. Lines Written for a Friend on the Death of Her Daughter,

BY SALLIE CARSON, In yonder churchyard, where the gravel!
Of youth and beauty have been made,
Another mound is seen; and there!
Une of earth's Lairost flowers is laid. Beneath the sod there slumbers now No face more loved, no form more fair, 'A stranger gazing on that tomb, Knows neight of the loved treasure than But you, who o'er her childhood years, L'er kept a mother's watchful eye— And saw that loved and gentle one, So quickly pine away and die— Well may you feel that one too good— To pure for earth—has passed away; has left a world of gloom to dwell In regions of eternal day.

And when that gentle face and form, Fond memory brings back to you, And bids you think of her, you feel. Your heart with anguish ring anew. But all in vain the wildest grief, In vain the bitter tear is shed : It ne'er gives back departed on It ne'er can restore the dead.

Then lay each loved momento by
Of her, who thus in life's bright mon
From home, and friends, and all of earth,
By Death's relentless hand was torn. But is she dead! And can it be. That cheek so late in healthful bloom Has lost its rosy hue, and now Lies in the cold and darksome femb! I hat she is dead, whose gentle ways, Could quicker charm than magic at. That closely bound her to her friends. And e'en could win a stranger heart,

Yes she is gone but can you mourn For one, whose spirit rassed away To a bright world of joy on high, Where naught but pleasure reigns for aye? And yet twete vain to say forget;
For to her trust fond memory true
In days to come will after bring
A sweet, familiar face to view.
