American Courtship. This must be an everlastin' fine country. beyond all doubt; for the folks have nothm' to do but to ride about and talk politics. In the winter when the ground is covered with snow, what grand times we have a sisyin over these here mashes with the gals, or playin ball on the ice, or goin' to quikin frolics of nice long winter evenin's, and then a driving home like mad by moon. ships on Salerday the city and town pose for courtin'-A little tidy scrumpta string of bells as long as a string of inions around his neck, and a sprig on his back lookin for all the world like a bunch Chairman of the Democratic Committee of Correspond of applies broke off at gatherin' time, and a sweetheart alongside, all muffled up but her eyes and lips - the one lookin' right in to you, and the other talkin' right at youit e'en a'most enough to drive oue ravin', tarin', distracted mad with pleasure, aint it? And then the dear critters say the bells make such a din there's no hearing one's rings up close to your face, and talk, talk, talk, till one can't help lookin' right at them instead of the norses, and then whap you both go capsized into a snow-drift together-skins, cushions, and all.-and then to see the little critter shake herself when she gets up, like a duck landin' from a pond, a chatterin' away all the time like a canary bird, and you a haw hawin' with pleasure, is fun alive, you may depend .-In this way blue nose gets led on to offer himself as a lovier, afore he knows where he bees. - Sam Slick.

A Sharp Countryman Outwitted. A stout middle aged man, whose appear ance showed that he was fresh from the country, came into a store in Catharine street yesterday, in evident excitement, to enquire the route to the Police Office. His apparent agitation induced the owner of the store, "who, like Paul Pry was naturally curious to know," to enquire as to the difficulty he was laboring under. He stated that strolling through South street, he felt something grazing his leg, and looking for the cause, saw a man picking up a pocket book, which appeared to be well filled, and make off with it in great haste. At the same moment another man addressed the countryman respecting the transaction, and Constitution, advised that they both should start in pursuit. The countryman thinking he had as much right to the pocket-book aforesaid, as the man who found it, was eager to obtain its possession. They fortunately found the man on a dock behind a wood pile, with the pocket-book in his hand, gloating over its rich contents of X's and V's. The man who joined our friend from the country, told the finder of the pocket-book that he (the countryman) was the owner of the book and noney, and it must be given up to him, and this our sharp country man also insisted up-The finder, however, refused to do this, unless he was paid for his trouble, and was bent on keeping it unless he received that my oyster shop in Chepachet was broat least five dollars. The gentleman who aided in finding the fellow, also informed the countryman that he certainly was entitled to something for his trouble, and demanded five dollars also, adding that he was then yielding up a fair claim to half the contents of the pocket book. This, too, was paid, and the countryman hastened to his lodgings close by, went to his room, locked the door, pulled off his coat, and drew forth the treasure in order to fiave the pleasure "all alone by himsel?" of counting it, his head already filled with the good he intended to do, and blessing the fortunate event that "carried him to York." There was a thick roll of tens, fives, and smaller denominations, all handsome looking bills, as if fresh from the difforent banks on which they were, as their face stated, payable on demand. Notwithstanding the bills were so handsome, our countryman who knew but little about bills, except the bills of the Long Island Bank (he was from the Island) went to a broker's of fice to get "mint drops" in exchange. The broker politely informed him that the mon ey, which consisted of $100 in City Trust and Banking Co. Sale of N. Biddle's Property .- We were not a little surprised to notice in the Philadelphia papers, that Nichotas Biddle's great Palace, at Andalusia, was to be sold by the Sheriff. The matter is explained in the Philadelphia Courier, which says:-"It is merely a matter of form, for the purpose of making a legal transfer of the property from the father to the son, the latter holding a large mortgage upon the property." Of course the money thus loaned by the

The Perry Medal.

The last number of the Butler Herald contains about two columns in relation to that Medal. We think the Capting is making too much fuss about such a small affair, yet as the De Kalb Grays consider themselves wronged in the award of the Medal, we deem it but justic to let our readers know what they think of it. The following is an editorial article written by Mr. Zigler, who is the Captain of the Grays. We must be excused for withholding an opinion on the subject, for, the we have borne military ly hurt. cuiles, we were superseded before we be came scienced in the 'string measure.'
