THE LITERARY POST Manuers and Customs in Haytle "Under Christophe there was a lever at ery summer evening: and during the carni-val a court ball was given. The usual smusement of the men was riding; that of the women, sitting before their doors under a screen, or in their covered balconies. Sometimes the notes of a guitar, or of a female voice, struck the ear. Promens commenced only after the death of Christophe. In his time no natives were seen in the coffee-houses, but these were filled when Boyer, with his army, entered the town .-Under the former, also, a certain cold otiquette and distance was preserved by the black nobility, who kept themselves stoof from the rest of the people. The whites, however, then as now, stood in high coasideration, regulated by the amount of their property. The black nobility had no idea of furnishing their apartments handsomely? a good proof of this was in the ornamental furniture I had taken out on speculation; the beautiful glass ware ornamental clocks. very well, but they did not think they would suit their moderately furnished apartments. Their beds are almost the only elegant forniture to be found amongst them. English or East India stuffs often form the drapery, The musquitare [or fly-nets] are frequently of the finest and most transparent texture. Expense is a characteristic rather of the whites than of the natives. At the table of the black man of rank the wine is frequently bad; and often there is none but cassass At particular festivals, however, the table similar elegancies are not wanting.

·Carriages were at that time used only on extraordinary occasions; thus a minister was often seen going to court on foot, in shoes and silk stockings, and at best a dirty negro trotted behind him. Rich ludies make their maid-servants carry stools to and from church for their use; the common people, during divine service, sit on the floor.

Luxury of dress is carried to the utmost height; the linen of both men and women is of the finest quality, and worked with rich embroidery, of which they are so fond, that every thing is made with it. The men, in Chri-tophe's time, wore uniforms while none of the military were decked out. E-All the property of the United States Land Company von the young. 'The Haytian black never works till compelled by hunger or force, and, the instant when the first physicians had pronounced them beyond he can cease from labor, he throws himself Il human means of relief. It is now not only well under the shadiest tree near him, lights but cigar, and delivers himself up to total idleness. It is not unusual to see two negroes The value of the medicine is becoming more and more sitt ing on one horse, and a third holding by the tail, to lessen his own proper exertion.
