Concentration of Food. Beef jerking or drying, was made known to the world by the buckaneers, and gives four times the amount of nourishment afforded by the same weight of fresh or salt ed meat, and does not conduce to scurvy, been universally practised by the North American Indians, but never, we believe in the old world, excepting in the Island of Madagascar, where it has been practised for the supply of slave ships. It is very simple; the operator has only to cut the meat into thin pieces, and expose them, divested of fat, to the heat of the summer aun in dry weather .-- There are extensive establishments for the purpose in the West Indies. Much benefit might accure from jerking beef for vessels bound on long voyages, and for the army, A great expense would be saved in salring and carriage, not to not do at all. But the proposition well speak of the improvement of health. By jerking cattle intended for the use of gar. risons the cost and care of keeping them would be spared, even where food For their consumption is easily attainable. How easy, too, for a soldier on a march to mation of their principles, and they are carry the weight of his jerked ration, for willing to compromise and "bury the preparation,

Horrid Murder.

The Warren Advocate gives the details of a nost fiendish murder which was perpetrated in Sheridan, Chatanque county, N. Y., on the 26 h ult. The murderer was a man named Sanderson and his victim a boy about 15 years old, who was occasionally subject to derangement, an adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Featherly. Mr. and Mrs. F. being absent, Sanderson and the boy were left at he may be laboring under an aberration of home. When they returned the boy was missing having murdered him, and searched the barn where they found him, pierced in sixty places with a pitchfork. Sanderson took the main road leading to Erie, and on his arrival at Milford, four miles west of Fredonia he stole a horse and continued his course west, probably intending to go to Cleveland, Ohio, as he had relatives residing there; but missing the roud, he came back into Chautauque coupty again neir Ashville, on the
