The value of the medicine is becoming more and more manifest, it is recommended daily from family to family. The Brandreth Pills remove in an almost imperceptible manner all noxious accumulations and purify and invigorate the blood, and their good effects are not counter balanced by any inconveniences; being commoned entirely of vegetables they do not expose those who use them to danger; and their effects are as rectain as they are salutary; they are daily and independent to infancy, youth, manhood, and old age, and to women in the most critical and delicate from stances. SLEIGHING SONG. A bright lip, and a flashing eye,

And a heart that springs with glee-A trackless path, where moonbeams lies to And a dashing sleigh, for me! Let others crowd the home hearth side, And dread old Winter's frown, But give to us the merry ride, His palace and his crown.

The groves and rocks are flitting past, And the homesteads seem to ffee. Sweeps swiftly on the winged blast, And faster still dash we; Old Time may stay his running sand, And cast his scythe away;

We live to night in a quiet land. That's far beyond his sway. How spotless yonder snow-wreath's breast! How bright you golden star!

But purer love, thy bosom rest, And thy eye is brighter for; Thy brow is like the mountain top That's wrapt in angels dreams, The brightest monnbeams round it drop, In chaster, holier streams.

When years have filled life's chrystal bounks With waves of strife and pride, Have stilled the wild throbs of the soul. And its fondest springs have dried, Oh! doubt not but thine eye more bright, And thy brow more clear, shall be, At memory of the moonlight night When our sleigh dashed on in gles.
