The visiter opened the door at which he had knocked, before Burnett had time to raise the latch, - but Grace, as her uncle turned to do so, made time enough to whisper Michael, 'If you'll be a good boy, and not repeat what vexed uncle just now, for three days, I'll give you a rosy cheeked apple, and butter to the potatoes for a week.' Mick laughed with delight, and Grace finished her speech just in time to say 'Kindly welcome,' illustrated by a pretty curtesy to the muffled up stranger, who was now standing in the midst of the his 'shillelah' was more carved than as i is usually seen in a countrymen's hand, and when he politely removed his hat, his brown clustering hair carled around a handsome, yet disagreeable countenance; at least, so Grace considered it; she thought of the simile in the mock sermon she had just read, of 'a look being as bad as a process;' and after dusting a chair with her apron, and pushing it towards him, she waited, expecting that he would speak in reply to the friendly greetings he had als ready received. He stood, however, in his old position, looking alternately at Burnett, at Grace, and Michael, and then investigating, with curious eye, every artic'e of furniture in the kitchen-the delf neatly arranged upon the dresser-the three deal chairs-the stools and 'bosses'-the noggins-the settle-the wheel, that most unusual piece of furniture in an Irish cottage -a small work-table, and a neat bookshelf 'facing the dresser,'-all were carefully accrutinised, until, at last, Burnett became annoyed at his visiter's rudeness, and. in prough tone, said, the hoped he liked all he saw, for he would be sure to know them again.

'Ay,' replied the man; thike to be sure I do; every thing here, is to be liked; and - his eye glanced f miliarly at Grace, "loved, for the matter of that; but---' in paused, and looked around again and a

'It's a wild night, and I'm thinking you'd better take an air of the fire, said Burnett. Thank ye, so I will; it feels very comfortable,' said the stranger, walking unler the shadow of the wide chimney, and spreading out his hands to the heat, which yet as if to himself; 'the dog; the pretty girl; every thing exactly as I saw it; it is very strange!'

'May I make so bould as to ask what is so strange?' enquired Burnett. 'Every thing; every thing here,' he replied, turning his back to the fire, and a gain surveying the apartment.

Nothing out of the common, sir, barring Grace's little work table; a compliment from the carpenter,' observed the simple minded man, while Grace blushed beautifully at the illusion to her; (truth will out;) her loverle

'Stranger and stranger still,' resumed the traveller; 'and that that young lady's name should be Grace!' 'Young lady!' repeated Burnett; 'she's an honest man's daughter, and a good little girl, but no lady.' 'She's your niece, and that poor fellow's your nepliew, and that dog's name is Snap and your name is Corney Barnett, commonly called Black Corney, or B'ack Bar-Holy Mary defend us!' ejeculated Grace, crossing herself; even Mick opened his large brown eyes; while their uncle said,

Why then it's known you must be among the neighbors, though you're strange to me, and your tongue's not of this country.' I have walked seventeen miles since entered a house-I was never in this part of the world before; and I was born in foreign parts; and yet I am as much at home here as if I had lived in the parish all my life. Every stick of your furniture I feel as used to as if it had been my own. Black Burnett crossed himself as h turned to look round his costage, and Grace slid slily out of the kitchen into her little chamber, and dipping her fingers into the vase of holy water that hung at the head of her humble bed, sprinkling herself with it; wetting her fingers again, so that on her re turn to the kitchen she might convey a few drops to her brother's person; her uncle wore a scapular so she considered him safe. Why, then, may I ask again how you gained your information?' questioned Burnett, as he seated himself opposite his mystifying guest, who, on Grace's return, was seated also. 'Indeed you may,' here died; 'and, what's not always the case, I'll answer you; I dreamt it? Upon this there was a loud exclamation. Their visiter looked round and smiled. 'Do not be ashamed of your relicountries, and one religion's as good as anoth. er if it's acted up to; thats my belief. Cross yourself again, my pretty maid, and you too, Master Burnett, and I will tell you how it line of sand-pits near this, a little way off Brodie's Pills would have a healing influ-
