STEAMBOAT EXCPLOSION!-LIVES LOST!

Yesterday, between one and two o'. clock, as the steamboat Cutter was backing out from our landing, she collapsed a I J Ashbridge flue which proved very disastrous in its John Wilkin consequences. The 2nd Engineer, M'- Robt P Steel Laurin, was killed on the spot, and the life of the let, Joseph Hughes, was despaired of. A man and woman, deck passengers, were severely injured, but it is DS Scully expected they will recover. The number Edw Norton of persons blown overboard is variously estimated at from 6 to 12 or 14, and but 3 were picked up. It is supposed that have heard the names of none but the Engineers.

A part of the crew of the Manhattan was on board, some of whom are supposed to be lost.

The second engineer was found dead in a box in which were a lot of hats, but mich were thrown out. He was blown a great distance aft.

The cause of the accident is said by ripassengers crowding to that side. No blame is attached to the officers. She

Do not forget the interesting lectures of Professor Bronson. They are richly worth treble the price of admission.

Bl. Putrick's Day, in the morning, was cold and the snow three or four inclus deep. This did not however, prevent the people ron enjoying them scives. Sleighs were out "schoting along" loaded with 'mortality" both male and female. The Irish Greens, Capt Kane, turned out and looked remarkably well. There was lots of amusement of all kinds, except drinking liquor. We did not sea a drunken man during the whole day-except one and he was a stra ger.
