Losing a Partner .- An elderly gentleman in Ar. kansas informs the New Orleans P.c.yune, that some twenty years ago the natives of Mexico were in the habit of dancing in the streets, and that fre quently in those days, he saw lines of people a mile in length, and all engaged in the dance. Or one occasion, a Frenchman lost his partner in a contredance, and never found her until he had "crossed over," "down the middle" and "up on the outside," for three days and nights!

Bausages. - A large dag attacked the wagon o market man in Albany, a few days ago, and seizing upon a coil of sausages, which were lying tomptingly in one corner, began tearing them 10 pieces, apparently in great fury. 'Why, neighbor," said a friend standing by, "what on earth's the matter with that critier, that he tackles them sassengers with sich wrath?" "Well, I'm sure I don't know," replied the astonished pedlar, "unless it is because they are made of a dog that he had a fight with yesterday."
