The whole extensive story of the Palace, was to-day appropriated to the feast, and all the company had sufficient room in the splendidly il. uminated galoons. I entered, and behold! the first prospect in the large valuen showed me the eelebrated Prince himself, surrounded by the Hungarian Deputies, who had arrived a few hours previously, to congratulate the Emperor on his birth day. I saw the extraordinary splender of the dress, with which these rich gentlemen, who were covered with gold and precious stones, had adorned themselves, and to make the pleasing contrast still more agreeable to me, I recollected a a visit on business, which I paid, three days since, to the Agent of Court, Mc Augustus Walcha,-This very honest gentleman, who personally are estate the poor foften beyond his means, enjoyed me ans, enjoyed my esteem long since. At the visit which I mentioned, I found him with wet eyes alongside of a Hungarian peasant, and supposed at once, that there was an unusual cause for his tears. Here it is: The peasant had been required by his master,a Hungarian nobleman, to perform in soccage some very hard work, and represented to him that he was old and sick and could not work. To prove to the peasant that he durst not be sick, the noble man had him placed cross the trunk of a tree and whipped. But how whipped? The pens. ant had just been opening a small bag, and, as an attestation to the Agent he drew forth an old shirt. Perceiving it, I saw that it was quite stiff, like a chirt, which, efter having been washed, has for preventing Explosion of Steam been hung up in the air on a very cold winter's day and froze stiff, When I examined it closer I well for the traveling community to bear interest their security depends entirely upon uragement of hoats that have or may be of procuring the above apparatus. > A splendid circle of beautiful and richly adorn-ed ladies filled the raloon, interwoven with officers adorned with ribbons and orders, and diplomatists adorned with ribbons and orders, and diplomatists of various rank; it was a dazzling scene, and the Princess, who was sitting in one of the saloons incensed by ladies and geatlemen, who surrounded her, was not the least handsome among the generally exceedingly beautiful ladies. It is said that she is possessed of some good feminine qualities, Her mother, the Countess Zichi Ferrari, in the most disagreeable, arrogant women under the counters. most disagreeable, arrogant woman under the sun; all the ladies in high life complain Litterly of the insupportable, haughty behavior of this lady, since her daughter is the Princess Metternick. This evening she was frightfully dressed up, and the paint laid on more carefully than eve; whether she yet wanted to appear as a beauty, the Gods only know. Almost all the pieces of the Vienness Diplomatist-Mosaic thronged together, busy ide, smilingly greeted each other, greetingly smiled at each other, eaid a mute nothing with an important air, made the drollest scrapes, coughed nobly, hawked more nobly, tried to say something witty, came forth at last with the most spirited.—
> "Do you do, Excellency?" and slipped as easily and as well as they could through the brilliant crowd of ladies, only thinking of thinking as little as possible and of saying polite nonsense to an-acquaintance as curteously and spiritedly as pos-

The most insupportable of all diplomatical faces to-day was to me that of the vain-glorious Bavarian Secretary of Legation, or Clerk, a conceited ill-bred, miserable dandy. That the Bavarians from Court are all ill-bred and rude, you know from my former notices. When a man is not in the humor to weep about States, he must burst laughing at the view of such a Diplomatical cirlaughing at the view of such a Diplomatical circle, that is eternally covered with false stones and internally hollow. A diplomatist in our days is an empty oyster shell, sticking deep in the mire; broken lock, that keeps back the stream below, the water rushing over it; a microscope, through which the Prince takes a mouse to be an elephant; a windmill, the roof of which can be turned at oleasure; a purse, full of antique coin, that is no longer current; in short a Diplomatist in our days is a Diplomatist. It appeared to-day to myacif like a sailor on the continent; I perceptibly wanted the usual open air and I would readily have xchanged all the periums about me for a little smell of Tar. But the calm without forced me to remain, and I therefore tried to amuse myself MANUFACTURED at Wm. Layborn's Cabinet Shop like a grown man at a puppet show. I saw the where a general smortment of Furniture may be had at stupid jesse, when I saw a childish neighbor and to supply the most the same and the stupid jesse. laugh, not to spoil the good boy's sport. Francis I should be Emperor of Gorge Claiman and the protector of the property of the princes of the property of the princes of the professional and the princes of the p many. The princes of the smaller German States, who joined the Confederacy were acknowledged as Sovereigns by Napoleon, and those who d d not join were placed under the sovreignty of the others, or mediat sed, though in some cases the mediatised territory was larger than that of the Sovereign Prince. After the fall of Napoleon and ever since they tried to be avain invested with their rights, but did not succeed, To these mediatised belongs Prime Public Muskau, the author of these lotters:
