THE LITERARY POST. THE BRITISH OUTRAGE AT THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. (Letter from an officer of the U. S. Navy.) OAKS, SANDWICH ISLANDS, March 6, 1843.

DEAR SIR.—The English flag now floats on this island, a professional cessation of the whole Hawaiian Group having been compelled to yield to her Britannic Majesty. The plea upon which this has been brought about is as frivolous as it is unjust, and so far from supporting the aggressive brands with all the characteristics of a piracy, as there is not a single legitimate claim for the cession and occupation under the English flag.

As these islands are of great importance to the United States, now and prospective, I have no doubt you will be glad of an authentic history of the disgraceful affair, which I will endeavor to give you as concisely as possible.

Lord George Paulet, Captain H. B. M. ship Carysfort, having caused the King to be sent for from Maui, demanded a private interview with his Majesty, choosing his own interpreter, for the purpose of presenting certain demands for redress on the part of British subjects. As the King, by according to this requirement, would have been completely cut off from his advisers, and as it was believed that the intention of his Lordship to betray him into some ill-judged act or admission, the private interview, thus restricted, was declined, but readiness was expressed to receive any written communication, or in case the business was of a nature so peculiarly private as not to be trusted to the usual method of discussion and adjustment, a confidential agent was named, with whom his Lordship might communicate. This proposal was declined by his Lordship with great discourtesy, and certain peremptory demands were presented, with a threat of attacking the town in case of non-compliance, within 24 hours. These demands, which the King was thus required to yield without a hearing, were arbitrary in the extreme and oppressive of the extreme kind. In the meantime the frigate Carysfort was cleared for action. Information of its intended hostilities at 4 P. M. was sent to Capt. Long, of U. S. ship Boston, at 12 the preceding midnight, and to the American and French Consuls, at 10 A. M., of the expected attack, thus giving the foreign residents nearly six hours of daylight for seeking protection for their persons, and to move their property. Had this state of things eventuated in hostilities, the shortness of the time allowed to the government for deliberation on demands, (now for the first time presented,) and to furnish redress to such an extent, would have rendered the subject of just and indignant protest by the respective parties.

As the King had no means of effectual resistance, he was nevertheless unwilling to provoke hostilities, he yielded to all his Lordship's requisitions within the time prescribed, under protest of embracing the earliest opportunity of representing the case to her Britannic Majesty.

Under the demands thus complied with, the King was forced to acknowledge Alex. M. Simpson as acting Consul of H. B. M., whom he had previously refused to recognize for legitimate reasons, sustained by evidence most complete and explicit, drawn out in detail for consideration of his Lordship, who in his solicitude to support justice, closed every avenue to negotiation, sprung his broad net of law, and refused to listen to anything.

Mr. Charlton, formerly Consul of H. B. M., after committing a series of highly disgraceful acts, and involving himself to the islands, suddenly decamped from the islands, without giving notice of his intention previous to going and engaging passage in the name of another party, and in the hurry of his departure, forgetting to pay his creditors. After his departure, Mr. Simpson produced authority from Mr. Charlton, delegating to him his Consular functions, and acknowledged his appointment by the Government of Oahu, had publicly threatened to involve the Government in difficulties, and even to produce the hoisting of the English flag. He had also refused to abide by the decisions of justice, and acknowledged the existing law; His recognition was also protested against by the Hudson Bay Company, who represent the chief commercial interest of Great Britain in these islands. That the King paused for advice from H. B. M. government before he recognized the unceremonious appointment, to a responsible office of a person so obnoxious to all parties, including his own countrymen, over whose interests he was called upon to preside, is a strong testimony to his honesty and good sense.

The King was also compelled, by an arbitrary act of power to remove an attachment which he had levied upon the landed property of Mr. Charlton, for the collection, in course of law, of a debt acknowledged by Mr. C. and decided upon by a jury for whom he ceased to be found in this island, the formal decisions of justice, impeded according to law, and to promising new trials.

Compliance having been procured with the exactions already named, others were devised by H. B. M. Acting Consul, (now acknowledged) more unjust and arbitrary, but fully sustaining the reputation and talents of Mr. Simpson. Exorbitant demands were claimed without any damages.
