The Daily Morning Post
A CAPITAL SKETCH.
BY LEVER.

O'Kelly having one evening lost himself in the streets and dangerous parlous of the 'Lale Bote' in Paris, the following adventure occurred to him.

A tall figure, wrapped in a cloak, produced a thick box, and began to climb deliberately with a steel and face, where crime and famine struggled for mastery, while I could mark that many had large clubs of wood, and one or two were armed with swords. I drew my breath with short efforts, and was preparing myself for the struggle, in which, though I saw death before me, I resolved to sell life dearly, when a hand was passed across the pillar of the door and rested upon my leg. For a second I gazed almost in a daze, then slowly moved up to the person, who, I felt, like one around whose body some magic incantation had been cast, and who, I felt, was not a man, but a spirit.

The hand was gentle, and I felt that I was not in a dream, but in a reality. I was seized by the throat, and a lantern was held up to my face, and I saw that I was in the presence of a man, who, I felt, was not a man, but a spirit.
