

...and a pair of spectacles, darkened my eyes with burnt cork, clipped on my mustache, and sallied forth to seek my way on.

I passed the residence of Madame Beaucharnois two or three times, an orderly dragon was at the door, but every thing was perfectly quiet.

The following day I met my police friend, who told me a long story of a desperate attack that had been made the night before on the person of Napoleon by an English assassin, who escaped; and the Minister of Police had issued instructions to the subordinate to every exertion in finding the ruffian out.

"I have experienced your vigilance more times than I can count, and I will give you my promise. Here is a description of the assassin, and he put into my hand a printed paper, giving a more particular description of my person."

"You may rely on my best exertions," said I, "to attempt the life of your assassin."

"No, there's the mischief!" returned he, "Citizen Beaucharnois is very fond of his money, and there are strange tales and rumors. My brother and sister are married, and Barris is trying to kiss the Dictator to get Beaucharnois the command of the forces that are to invade France."

"Three or four days afterwards, I was furnished with a long catalogue of addresses, purporting them to be those of English spies, and who were mixed up with all the freedom of a native, frequented the public places, and was quite one of the boys of the city."

"Some circumstances occurred, that brought him into my suspicion. If I recollect right, it was through Beaucharnois having questioned him relative to his country, and he only answered me in French."

"It so happened, however, that after their first examination by the judges de Fink, they were conducted together to confinement, to be brought up on some future period, when the first Turk, during the temporary absence of the Governor, heard the second Turk, who was a prisoner, talking very fluently in a language that the other did not understand."

...military government, a military garb might be useful, the full odium of which is better understood in an over-peopled land, than in a land well clothed in the necessities of life.

FOR PRESIDENT, JAS. BUCHANAN

Subject to the decision of THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION. The Daily Morning Post.

PHILLIPS & SMITH, EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS. PITTSBURGH, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1843.

THE ANTI-SLAVERS.—On Saturday next the Anti-Slavery Committee will meet to consider what can be done to maintain the power and influence of the Blue Noes. They can devise any thing that will be effective, in this hour of tribulation for Antislavery. We have no expectation, The Gazette puts forth the following four propositions, which we approved, have been well considered and digested by the leaders of the Blue Noes Faction, and will, in all probability, be adhered to by the committee when it meets. We cannot but admire the philosophy which the Gazette attaches under the misnomers it has met with, and the facility with which it descends from the high and haughty disjunctive ground assumed by the Blue Noes to the level of the common sense of the people. We can not but admire the philosophy which the Gazette attaches under the misnomers it has met with, and the facility with which it descends from the high and haughty disjunctive ground assumed by the Blue Noes to the level of the common sense of the people.

THE SILENT TRADE.—Mr. Burton states that 150,000 new slaves were annually taken from Africa, of whom 90,000 are imported into Brazil. Of this 90,000, imported in Africa, a large portion of them are employed by the English mining companies, who carry on in that country, almost the entire business in that department, and they do not under the patronage of the English Government. What a spectacle does the present of the hypocrisy of the British government, which, by way of emasculation, the peculiar friend of the slave, and of emancipation.

REV. BENTLEY.—The people of New York have given Gen. Bennett in the most complimentary manner. He was accompanied from Boston by a committee of his countrymen residing there, who went on to Boston to visit the General. He landed on the Battery yesterday morning, and was escorted to his lodgings, at the Astor House, by a large concourse of citizens, and a patriotic dinner by the city authorities, passed up Broadway in a beautiful carriage drawn by four white horses.

THE FRENCH CITIZENS.—The French citizens were to have called on him on Saturday, and the officers of the Military of New York in a body, on Monday, and with them we would wish all the fortifications, military posts, and naval vessels and stations. And on the same day he would receive such of the citizens as wished to call on him, at the Governor's room, in the City Hall, placed at his disposal, during his stay in town, by the city authorities.

...was elected Governor. The prominent candidates balloted for, were R. P. Thompson, Esq., of Salem; James S. Green, Esq., of Mercer; Mr. Ogden of Passaic; and the successful candidate, Gen. Will of New York, but after the first ballot was withdrawn.

STATE OF A BRITISH STEAMER.—The steamer Admiral was seized at Rochester N. Y., on Sunday, charged with smuggling. The U. S. Custom House officers found five or six gallons of gin on board of her. The Rochester Democrat, of Tuesday, says she was still in custody.

WE observe a paragraph in some of the Clay papers, which states that President Tyler lost one of his black, and they appear to regard this as a favorable sign that that any one who has read the Gazette will not be surprised to find that it is gradually verging towards whiggery, and that there is good reason to suppose that in a short time it will turn a complete summer into the whiggery. Clay will thus gain a White slave, which would be infinitely more important to his cause, than the loss of a Mack of this opponent.

CONGRESSIONAL RETURNS.—Official.—We copy the following Congressional Returns from the Harrisburg Union. On adding up the majorities in the several districts, it will be found that the aggregate democratic majority for members of Congress over 20,000.

It is well known that in many of the districts where our Congressional candidates were defeated, the democrats carried their county officers and members of the Legislature by large majorities. This fact shows that our Congressional majority would have been over 25,000, if the party had supported their candidates for Congress as uniformly as they did the other portions of their ticket.
