THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION The Daily Morning Post.

THOMAS PHILLIPS, EDITOR. PITTSBURGH, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17. PUBLIC ECONOMY.—EXPENSES OF COURTS.—Since It has been made apparent to the public, that we are "hover head and ears" in debt, and that we must find some other mode of getting out of our difficulties than the old one of contracting new liabilities to pay off old ones, every body who thinks on the subject is anxious to discover some means by which permanent relief may be obtained. A friend has furnished us with the following, which we adopt as our own, and commend it to public attention. While speaking of the subjects, that call for the investigation of a searching economy, in order to discover the expenses, or increase the revenue of the State, some small things should be attended to. The great 'object with us should be to inculcate a general and rigid wratem of economy in all the departments of the government. And we shall never learn to be really economical, while we are indifferent as to small expenses and small wastes It ought to become a fixed habit of thought and action in every agent of the people, to avoid every expenditure which can be dispensed with, and is suppress every tendency to extravagance. A saving even in the wax and tape and candles of the legislature, would; in this view, be of much consequence. It would prove a disposition favorable to economy, and tend to induce economical habits. We shall not therefore find fault, when we see members of the legislature attempting a reformation even in these small matters. We haveoften thought of the immense cost of ou courts to the public, and wished that more of the expense could be thrown upon the litigating parties. We have no complaints as to the salaries of the judges .--We think that, as the world goes now-a-days, we are not to expect people to accept office out of charity to the public; and we do not think that judges are general ally paid as much by the state, as they could make at the practice of the law, and not so much as is often team. made by private agents or individuals in comparatively bound to support litigation? We think that litigation might be much diminished if the whole expense of it were thrown upon the parties; and this would be itself a great moral benefit. We have read that, in old times, the law was that whoever fulled in action was adjudged to pay a fine to the state for his wrongful prosecution or defence. Why might not this be so, in some form now? Why should there not this be so, in some form now? Why should there not the state for this be so, in some form now? Why should there not this be so, in some form now?
