> WELVES IN MAINE .- [ Extract from a letter dated, Dec 1st. ]-"Wolves are very numerous upon this (the Narraguagus) river. They are destroying the deur very rapidly. Carcases are found in all directions in the woods A woll was caught in Beddington a wrek or two since, three feet two inches in height, six foet from the tip of the nose to the end of the tail, and weighing about 100 pounds. The howling in the night is represented as tremendous by every one who passes a night in the woods They are not unfrequently south y those passing up and down the river. Nine were seen together, near the settlement of Beddington last : week. It is probable that when they shall have thisned out the deer pretty illoroughly, the licep folds, &c, near the sea board will suffer.
