Those who imagine that great public and privations are to be encountered in emigrating to and from the West, are not aware what travelling is over the sunds of the desert, where all is a barren waste, and even water cannot be obtained for days by travellers. The Baltimore Sun, in referring to what may be conceived to be a case of extreme suffering, says:—

'We observed yesterday in Bultimore street, a family, consisting of the father, mother, and several children, ly, consisting of the father, muther, and several children, the eldest of whom did not appear to be over eight or ten years of age, while the youngest was an infant at the breast. The father trundled a small wheelbarrow. spon which was certied all their worldly goods, except the clothes they had on—the mother carried the hifant her arms, while the rest of the children walked beside. At the time we first noticed them they had paused to rest, and, stretched in repuse beneath the whoelbarrow was their faithful dog. The whole par-ty had travelled in this way from Ohio, and were on their way to Jersey, where, it was understood, they had friends. The man stated that he had been unortunate in Ohio, and had been compelled by poverty to abandon his residence there; and the same etern ne-FASHIONBLE BOOT MAKER, has removed to No. 34 Market street, between Second and Third streets, where he would be happy to see his judged, especially the f. male, whose care-worn features storyers and all others who feat it. a one told sufficiently the burdships they had endured. These, when last heard from, had no medicine, could get no physician, and had but one individual to wait upon them, a female relative,

> EDUCATION. The following brief but beautiful passage occurs in late article in Frazer's Magazine; "Education does not commence with the alphabet, the begins with a mother's look—with a father's nod of pprobation, or a sigh of reproof-with a sister's gone pressure of the hand, or a bruther's noble act of recurrence—with handfulls of flowers in green and aisy meadows-with bird's nests admired, but not suched-with creeping ants, and almost imperceptiole emmets-with humming bees and glass bechives -with pleasant walks in shady lunes - and with the'ta directed, in sweet and kindly tones and words, to naure, to beauty, to acts of benevulence, to deeds of virtue, and to the sense of all good, to God himself."

THE BLUES-GOOD ADVICE. We cut the following pithy advice from an article in the Knickerbocker, for the benefit of those wretched mortals who are in the practice of daily "supping full of horrors." It is better than Brandrath's pills. "Weil air, how have you been! Down in the mutth again! Aye, sir, you have born looking at something too long.
