DEATH OF OLD GRIMES. -- From un obituary notice which appears in the last number of the Barre (Mass.) Gazette, it would seem that "Old Gritnes is dead" at billoss of time with BRANDRETH'S I ILLE.

Thildly but surely remove all impurities of the blood, and no case of sickness can effect the haman frure, that these celebrated pills do not reliave us much as that these celebrated pills do not reliave us much as true. We give the article from the Cantitie.

Ephraim Grimes, M. Hubbardstown, whom every budy in all this region knows as "Old Grimes," or as led by the Brandreth pills, than by lozenges and can"Eph. Grimes," and whom thousands have coupled dies. Very well, perhaps, as paliatives, but worth with the trite old song, "Old Grimes is dead"—died upthing as eradicators of diseases from the human tion. Term at the Alms House in that town on Thursday of last week, aged eighty-five. Few individuals have ever attained a greater notoriety in this and the adjoining counties, and none ever deserved it better. There are a thousand transitionary tales of his merry and mischiev ous tricks which are true, and more deviltry of which he was probably never guilty, is ascribed to him, than to any necromancer or unearthly spirit of old. From high to low, from the clergy to the crockery shop, from even the courts of justice to church deacons in their seats, so man was safe from "one Old Grimes's stricks." The pillory, the stocks, and even the House of Correction, were utterly insufficient to retain his mischief-making propensity. Wherever he weat, it was the loss of loss seemed as if Satan were let loose. Not that his tricks were malicious, but in ingentity of device and power of annoyance, they rivalled the capacity of the father of annoyance, they rivalled the capacity of the father of mischief.

During the latter part of his life, old Grimes was a for six months; and she received no benefit whatever During the latter part of his lite, old Grimes was a dependent on the pauper support of his native town.

The light of his genius had expired, his right hand forgot its cunning, and the lie no longer rolled glibly from his tongue." Yet the reputation of his former was a death, but he appeared to be at a loss how to preceed, and poor wife still continued to suffer the most terrible was therefore sought other aid in a Botanideeds yet survived, (and long will,) and render him an object of curiosity. Even when the spirit had departed, and the good people of Humbbardstown had seen him "safely" undergrounds they left the grave-yard looking over their shoulders, it is said. lest this it scen of his eventful life might prove to be but another af old Gromes's tricks."

FATHER MATTHEW. Is a native of Thomaston, county of Tipperary, and is related to the family of Lord Landoff. Soon after his ordination to the Roman Catholic Priesthood, (in which he is of the order of Fraciscian Friars,) he was appointed to officiate in Cork, where he has since that timeresided. In that city his earlier services were directed to the instruction of young men in religious knowledge, who subsequently formed themselves into-a society from which some of them, aided by his friend hip, have since become clergymen, and, in that capa cty, borne creditable testimony to his judicious disment and insight into his character. In manners he is gentle, amiable and winning, and in deportment polished and even courtly. His habits are in strict accordance with his profession, his charities are many unostentations, his popularity with all classess and condi-tions unlimited by diversity of religious opinion, is broad and enduring. "Mr. M. is remarkable for his decision of character-cautious in forming but firm in maintaining his opinion. He will be welcomed to our shores by eager thousands of all sects and opinions; and we trust many who are now sunk into dissipation and besotted with drink, a curse to themselves, and t terror to their families, will have reason to bless the nission of mercy which brings him to America.- N
