ANOTHER STEAMBOAT DISASTER-Loss of Life The New Orleans Commercial Bulletin of the 4th inst, contains the following account of another steam boat disaster in the neighborhood of that city.

"The tow boat Pilot, Capt. Gow, strived yesterds orning from the Balize, and went up to Gretna to take in wood. At about 5 o'clock last evening, after she had taken her wood on board, and was on the point of dropping down to the city, her boilers burst, killing and scalding several persons. Full particular could not be obtained but we learn that the steambont Helen, Capt. Ure, being in sight at the time, went t the rescue, and succeeded in picking up ten of the per ons who had been on board, and brought them to tow Among those brought down were Mr. William Guw son of the captain, who is not expected to survive his injuries; Mr. Nichulson, 1st engineer, and Mr. Fox. 2d do., both badly scalded. Thomas Kearney was blown overboard and lost. Capt. Gow himself was badly scalded, and was left at Gretna Most of those rought down by the Helen, were injured, and have en sent to the hospital."

COTTON SPECULATIONS. The editor of the Charleston Patriot, when he ad resses himself to the task of instructing or giving caution to his mercantile friends, displays great pru dence and sagacity. In a late paper he speculates at some length upon the two great crisis in cuton opera-tions—that of 1825 and the other of 1844, which has not yet reached its acme, perhaps. The writer looks tons, &c, &c. upon the first one as having been brought on and stimated by the excessive paper issue, of the Bank of En- DAVID LLOYD. pland. The speculation was controlled in effect by he bank, and the prices of cotton were maintained at a high point, like the prices, of other commodities, so long as the currency continued redundant. When that fell with them. The excitement this year he attributes, and justly, to the short crop, but it is stimulated by the plethoraf money on both sides-not a redundant paper currency but an accumulation of hard money seeking employment; so there is no danger from this source.— The writer looks upon it as struggle between capitalists, and avows his belief that, could we hold up on this side, so as to keep the spianers moderately supplied for a couple months, we should surely triumph. But he doubts our ability to do so, and argues that the advance which has already taken place in our great staple should satisfy "any rational desire for profit." The Patriot concludes its speculations by warning operators againsts helding on too long.—N. O. Pic.
