To the Agent, Mr. J. KIRBY. I have used Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Charry for a Cough, with which I have been severely afflicted for about four months, and I have no hesitation in saying that it is the most effective medicine that I h ven been able to procure. It composes all uneasiness, and agrees well with my diet,—and maintains a regular and good appetite. I can since ely recommend it to all others similarly afficred.

DUBLIN, Jun. 22 1844. Dear Sirs-Ill health has prevented my attending the State Trials, accoming much of this renowned City. I have observed enough, herever, to prove to me that Dublin is a very elegant but not prosperous place.—
The shipping is confined almost to coal vessels, and quays which should be musical with the hum of commerce are deserted. Dublin is by far the handcomesa City I have as yet visited in the old world. Many of the houses are superb—the streets are long and spa-cious, and the public buildings are truly magnificent. The Irish Patriot, Brennan, accompanied me in a walk to most of the Architectural lions—such as the Castle RESPECTFULLY inform the public that I have and keep always on hand an assortment of Fire findings of all descriptions, and of the best quality. This Cae thedral is a structure, which, before the hand of spelic ation defaced its alters and reformed (!) its embellish. ments, must have been superb. The banners of the Order of St Patrick still wave from the walls and the cient belinets of the Knights ornament the castles.

the stateliest piles of his beloved City.

It would delight you to see the nitthfulness of the Irish amid all their desolution—especially after leaving the solemn showsy faces of the English,—If sonh as some Philosophers contend, consists in fire, the Irish people got in some manner or other a more than fair proportion—for they are unadountedly the most fervial and enthusiastic people in the world. As to their has pitality—why that is earth-repowned. Why here, the gentleman from whom I have taken rooms, treats me already more like a son than a lodger. me ulready more like a son than a loiger.

It is mournful to walk through the streets of this once flourishing and splendid metropolis. Many of the propuenades, such as Sackville and Westmoreland treets, cannot be outvied perhaps in Europe, but othr streets, which a few years ago, were near opulance and architectural grandeur, are fulling the per or old rags-clothes drying from protraded phile THORN'S PULMONARY CANDY.
