The effence of Gasper or Radolph, or whatever he was, and what he described the dereliction in duty of his barron's breast they swallowed up every other consideration. He quite forgot his own threatened doors he had no thoughts to spare from the event which had just taken place, and from the consequences which he designed should follow, at least with respect to one of the actors in it. Of course he never went to bed, but remained all night pacing up and down and watching

The whole household was in an equal state of inequietude; but the astrologer was calm, and looked upon the tumult around him with a sad smile; now and then the astrologer was calm, and looked upon the tumult around him with a sad smile; now and then the astrologer was calm, and looked upon the tumult around him with a sad smile; now and then the looked upon the same than the then, too, he exchanged looks of intelligence with a squire, or man-at-arms, and then turning to a window he bent his looks upon the stars. At one time he gaz-ed long and carnessly on the firmament, and then his thoughts involuntarily clothing themselves in words, he muttered. Would that every man beneath your glo-rious expanse were clothed with fortunes suitable to his own descriptors.

is own deservings! 'Ha! prayst thou so?' said a voice belind him,
He turned and beheld the jester.
'If such a prayer as that,' continued the fool, 'were to be instantly granted, how many, think you, would wittingly breathe it?

He stayed not for a replyt-but, with a wild maniac laugh and a rattle of his bells, skipped lightly away.

The astrologer gazed after him. 'He is more of a knave than a fool, he said.

The morning broke brightly. All around the castle somed fresh, and still, and peaceful; all within was wild contending passion, gloomy foreboding, and cheer,

A bird sat upon the castle gate among the ivy, and poured forth its joyous heart in song; a grating noise drowned the notes—it was the executioner sharpen. ing his exe.

The morning passed away; but slowly to some, how quickly to others. The baron thought of the astroio-ger; it was but for a moment, and it was with a success He declared himself secure now, 'His time shall the deciared numbers secure kow, this time small come, he multered to himself; 'but Gasper's is first,' At this moment the hall door was flung open, and Christine entered. Her dress was in wild disorder, her cheek deadly pale, her long black dishevelled hair was streaming behind her, and her eyes were flashing and bloodshot. and clasped his knees. 'Spare, spare I love him, I will die with him!' was all she could utter, will die with them: was all she could diter,

'Spare!' quoth the baron, grimly, 'a modest request, ruly. And so every piece of taingamy that thinks fit—every Gasper Thingamy

'His name is not Gasper,' exclaimed Christiness'
'tis Rudolph Wolfstein: he is my cousin."

The words had hardly passed her lips hefore she. saw that her rashness had cut off the only chance of mercy. Her heart sunk within her. The baron turn ed as pale as if he had been soaked in whitewash, and then as scarlet as the austs of a whole regiment.

'Ha! be muttered, 'that accursed name again! I thought its owner's bones had been blenching under the waters of the Rhine; but now I will make sure! the waters of the Rhine; but now I will make sure!
Ha! 'tis a raw chance, a very rare chance, to have my natural enemy in my clutch; and a pretence for putting him to death, other than that he do my enem;.
H!—luck—luck—good luck—good luck!'
All this was thought rather than said.
Space—space!' murmured the wretched Christine.

. I will see it from the battlements, said the barons the hour is at hand I' and so muttering, he ascended: the corkscrew stairs which led to the highest pinnasie/i of the castle.

Bars of light shining in through narraw loophole in the thick walls guided the baron's factstops.

In ascended he left the din and confused turning in the ascended he left the din and confused turning in the second state.

The dial plate of the clock was not solid; it consists of a huge circular grating of metal, in the rim of which the letters denoting the hours were traced. In serring his head into one of the open spaces which is sufficed to admit it, he looked anxiously downward. Had the baron's mind been comfortable, or had his taste inclined to the picturesque, he would have marked with delight around him. He would have marked broken to the prompt. Goods received stored and forwarded to any part of the country.
