THE TRUE WAY TO RECOVER HEALTH.

☞An individual only wishes to know the right way to pursue it; and there are none, were it surely made known how LIFE might be prolonged and Health recovered, who would not doubt the plan.—Evidence is required that the right way is discovered. This is what those suffering from sickness want to be satisfied about. For who is so foolish as not to enjoy all the health that his body is capable of? Who is there that it would not live when his experience can so much benefit himself and family? It is a melancholy fact that a very large proportion of the most useful members of society die between the ages of thirty and forty. How many widows and helpless orphans have been the consequence of mankind not having in their own power the means of restoring health when lost.

Now all these dangers and difficulties can be prevented and the long and certain sickness, and by assisting nature in the outset, with a good dose of Brandreth's Pills. This is a fact, well understood to be so by thousands of our citizens. This medicine, if taken so as to purge freely, will surely cure any curable disease:—There is no form or kind of sickness that it does not exert a curative influence upon. Thus, by their power in resisting putrefaction, they cure measles, small pox, worms and all contagious fevers. There is not a medicine in the world so able to purify the mass of blood, and restore it to a healthy condition, as the Brandreth Pills.

The Brandreth Pills are purely vegetable, and so innocent that the infant of a month old may use them, if medicine is required, not only with safety but with a certainty of receiving all the benefit medicine is capable of imparting. Females may use them in all the critical periods of their lives. The Brandreth Pills will insure their health, and produce regularity in all the functions of life.

The same may be said of Brandreth's external remedy, as an out ward application to all external pains or swellings, or sores, it greatly assists the cure,—When used where the skin is very tender or broken, it should be mixed with one or two pints of water.

A sure test of genuine Brandreth Pills.—Examine the box of Pills. Then look at the certificate of agency, whose engraved date must be within the year, which every authorized agent must possess; if the three labels on the box agree with the three labels on the certificate, the Pills are true—if not, they are false.

Principal office, 241 Broadway, New York.

IMPORTANT FACTS.

DR. LEIDY'S Sarsaparilla Blood Pills are applicable in all cases, whether for Purgatives or Purification. They possess all the boasted virtues of other pills, and are additionally efficacious, containing Sarsaparilla in their composition, which is not contained in any other pills in existence. They are also different from other pills in composition, being purely vegetable, and can be employed at all times, without any danger, and requiring no restraint from occupation or usual course of living.

Notwithstanding Dr. Leidy never pretended his Blood Pills would cure all diseases, yet it is not saying too much of them, from the innumerable cures performed by them in every variety and form of disease (certificates of many of which have been published from persons of all denominations, physicians, clergymen, and others) that they seem to be almost universal in their effect; and persons using them for whatever sickness or disease, may rest assured that they will be found more efficacious than any other pills in existence.

From the known reputation of Dr. Leidy's Blood Pill, it is necessary to remind the public where they can at all times procure the genuine, as it is attempted to impose other pills, called the 'Blood Pills' upon the public on the reputation of Dr. Leidy's. ☞Be particular and ask for Dr. Leidy's Sarsaparilla Blood Pills and see that the name of N. B. Leidy is contained on two sides of each box, (the boxes being of paper, and oblong, square shape, surrounded by a yellow and black label.

PRICE—25 cents a Box.

The Daily Morning Post.

A WOLF ENCOUNTER.

BY T. B. THORPE.

The hunter, Holt, of whom I have before spoken, has had some strange encounters with wild animals among those lonely dells which I have attempted to describe; and John Cheney had, sometime since, a fight with a wolf, which is almost as well worthy of commemoration as the doughty feat of old Putnam.

It was a fine winter; the snow was some four or five feet on a level; and the hunter, upon whom the change of seasons seemed to produce but little effect, could only pursue his game upon snow shoes, an ingenious contrivance for walking on the surface, though not much used in our northern countries, by Indians who dress quite a trade in them along the Canada border. Wandering far from the settlements, and making his bed at night full in a snow bank, Cheney rose one morning to examine his traps, near which he will sometimes be encamped for weeks in complete solitude; when, hovering around one of them he discovered a famished wolf, who, unappalled by the presence of the hunter, retired only a few steps and then turning around, stood watching his movements.

"I sought, by rights," speaks John, "to have waited, for my dogs, who could not have been far off, but the creetur looked so savey, standing there, that though I had not a bullet to spare, I couldn't help letting into him with my rifle!" He aimed his aim, the animal giving a spring as he was in the act of firing, and turning upon him before he was able to reload his piece. So effective was the unexpected attack of the wolf, that his fore paws were upon Cheney's snow shoes before he could rally for the fight. The forester became entangled in the deep drift, and sank upon his back, keeping the wolf off at bay by striking at him with his rifle. The stock was broken to pieces in a few moments, and it would have fared ill with the hunter's woodsman, if the wolf, instead of making at the enemy's throat when he had him thus at disadvantage, had not, with blind fury, seized the barrel of the gun in his jaws.

Still the fight was unequal, for John, half buried in the snow could make use of but one of his hands. He shouted to his dogs; but one of them, only a young, untrained hound, made his appearance, emerging from a thicket, he caught a sight of his master lying apparently at the mercy of the ravenous beast, uttered a yell of fear, and fled howling in the woods again. "Had I had one shot left," said Cheney, "I would have given it to that dog, instead of despatching the wolf with it. To the awkwardness of the moment, John might have extended his contempt to the whole canine race, if a stauncher friend had not opportunely interposed to vindicate their character for courage and fidelity.

All this had passed in a moment; the wolf was still grinding on the iron gun barrel in his teeth, he had even once wrenched it from the hand of the hunter, when dashing like a thunderbolt between the combatants, the other hound sprang over His master's body, and seized the wolf by the throat. "There was no let go about the dog when he once took hold. If the barrel was red hot the wolf couldn't have dropped it quicker; and it would have done you good, I tell ye, to see the old dog drag the creetur's head down in the snow, while I, jist at my leisure, drove the iron into his skull. One good, fair blow through with a rifle barrel on the back of the head finished him. The fellow gave a kind o' quiver, stretched out his hind legs, and then he was done for. I find the rifle stocked afterwards, but she would never shoot straight after that fight; so I got me this pistol, which, being light and handy, enables me more conveniently to carry an axe upon my long tramps, and make myself comfortable in the woods."

Many a deer has John since killed with that pistol. It is curious to see him draw it from the left pocket of his grey shooting jacket, and bring down a partridge. I have myself witnessed several of his successful shots with this unpretending shooting-iron; and once saw him knock the feathers from a wild duck at eighty-or a hundred yards.—Wild Scenes.

HINDOO FABLE.

There is a fable among the Hindoos, that a thief having been detected and condemned to die, thought upon an expedient by which he might be released from death. He sent for the jailor, and told him that he had an important secret to disclose to the King, and when he had done so he would then be perfectly ready to die. He said he knew the art of producing rods that should bear gold: The King, accompanied by his prime minister, courtiers, and priests, came with the thief to a certain spot, where they began their incantations. The thief then produced a piece of gold, declaring, that if sown it would produce a tree, every branch of which would bear gold; "but," added he, "this must be put into the ground by a person perfectly honest. I am not so and therefore pass it to your Majesty." The King replied, "when I was a boy I remember of taking something from my father, which, though a trifle, prevents me from being the proper person. I pass it therefore to my prime minister." The latter said, "I receive the taxes from the people, and, as I am exposed to many temptations, how can I be perfectly honest? I therefore give it to the priest." The priest pleaded the same as to his conduct in receiving sacrifices. At length the thief exclaimed, "I know not why we should not all be hanged, since none of us are honest." The King was so well pleased at the ingenuity of the thief that he granted him his pardon.—Old paper.

MODE OF THE CURING SLAVES.

Towards autumn it is customary for the Sindian merchants to proceed to Muscat to make purchases. From their account it appears, that after the monsoon, Arab dealers freight vessels with dates and copran cloths and proceed in them down the African coast, not to any towns or cities, but to well-known localities, where experience has taught them, they can make their purchases at a cheaper rate than any port. The people of the country, in expectation of these visits, are usually encamped near the shore. The Arabs say, that being ignorant of the language of the natives, they are unable to communicate otherwise than by signs. On anchoring off one of these slave-stations the dealer puts a portion of his merchandize into a boat and goes on shore. The quantity of dates and cloth which he considers as likely to tempt the cupidity of the negroes is spread on the beach, when one of the Africans advances from the camp, examines the goods, and perceiving, from the peculiar manner in which the articles arranged, whether man or woman, boy or girl is required, returns to his companions, and brings forward a slave who in age and appearance, he considers a fair exchange for the goods offered. Should the merchant be dissatisfied, he feigns to take away his merchandise; another slave is then produced, and the bargain having at length been completed, the new purchase is removed on board the boat, and another stock of dates, &c. brought on shore, and so on until they have obtained the number required. For the Sindian market children of tender years are generally bought; adults of either sex not commanding any sale in that country, in consequence of their supposed disinclination to labor and disposition to run away; and also the difficulty found in teaching them the Sindian language. The Arab dealers are of opinion that the children thus disposed of to them are captured from rival tribes in the interior, as they show no reluctance whatever at accompanying their new masters. It is not often that more than five or six can be obtained at one time.—Slavery in Scinde: Colburn's United Service Magazine.

How natural it is for the partizans of Henry Clay to rejoice over Native American victories. It will be recollected that Mr. Clay himself, in the U. S. Senate, opposed the admission of Missouri into the Union with our present Constitution, because it extended the rights of citizenship to adopted citizens with more liberality than we and his whig friends thought should be extended to them.—Democratic Free Press.
