Y. Tribune, Salt in Iowa-We learn from the last Burlington (Iowa) Territorial Gazette, that there are numerou rindications of the existence of salt in that Territory and particularly in that region of the country border ing on the Des Moines River. A company of gentlemen acquainted with the Salt business, and who have great confidence in the success of their enterprise, are engaged in boring in the town of Bonaparte, Van Buren Co. Should there be found salines in the Territory, which would, on being worked, afford a sufficient supply of salt for consumption, it would be an incalculable vantage to that section of country. Their supply is now derived chiefly from New Orleans, and from the manufactories at Knnawha, in Virginia.
