

OUR CANDIDATES.—The coons make desperate efforts to speak contemptuously of the democratic candidates, but all their efforts cannot conceal their fears for the result.

Fridolin bowed and held her fair hand, and was soon on his road to the chapel which lay but two miles out of the direct path to the dinner-table.

Wishing to assure himself of the fate of his victim, the count informed Robert of his orders to Missagetti, and then, to throw the devoted Fridolin into the furnace, and the triumph which shone in the countenance of the countenance would have inevitably betrayed him.

"A few short minutes," thought the count, "and he who would have been a hero, is no more."

"Do you, Robert—yes, I would ask him if my commandments have been executed."

"Yes, my lord, I have learned from Missagetti that the count's orders have been executed."

"Fridolin crossed at the chapel, and uttered a long and fervent prayer for the health and happiness of his mistress and her son—his rose from his knees, mouningly bowed, and then, with a sigh, he turned again to his duty, at least some part of it had been exhausted in his present mission.

"Fridolin dismissed, and was compelled to walk ten miles before he could perceive another soul."

"The count walked up and down his apartment, his quick and anxious eyes never to leave the window of his mind—he was waiting the arrival of Robert, who, ere he might have returned, he had been in the kitchen, the door opened, and Fridolin calmly entered."

"The count scarcely believed the evidence of his eyes. Recovering his speech, he cried, 'Whence come you, Fridolin?'"

"From the Eisenhammer, my lord."

"Impossible—but terribly by the way!"

THE NOMINATIONS.

From the Baltimore Republican and the James K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

We have never seen a nomination to be received with such approval as that of Mr. Polk, the nominee for such a majority of feeling towards the nomination, and yet so many of those who have been so successful that of J. K. POLK.

Mr. Polk's powerful efforts to the democratic cause have given him a strong hold upon the affections of the people, but at the same time, they have drawn upon him the implacable hatred of the federal leaders and the unscrupulous denunciation of the hired minions of the bank.

In education and mental powers, Mr. Polk is at least equal to the federal candidate, and in all the qualities that should be expected of a peaceable and moral man, he is far superior to him as one man can be to another.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

THE NOMINATIONS.

From the Baltimore Republican and the James K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

We have never seen a nomination to be received with such approval as that of Mr. Polk, the nominee for such a majority of feeling towards the nomination, and yet so many of those who have been so successful that of J. K. POLK.

Mr. Polk's powerful efforts to the democratic cause have given him a strong hold upon the affections of the people, but at the same time, they have drawn upon him the implacable hatred of the federal leaders and the unscrupulous denunciation of the hired minions of the bank.

In education and mental powers, Mr. Polk is at least equal to the federal candidate, and in all the qualities that should be expected of a peaceable and moral man, he is far superior to him as one man can be to another.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

THE NOMINATIONS.

From the Baltimore Republican and the James K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

We have never seen a nomination to be received with such approval as that of Mr. Polk, the nominee for such a majority of feeling towards the nomination, and yet so many of those who have been so successful that of J. K. POLK.

Mr. Polk's powerful efforts to the democratic cause have given him a strong hold upon the affections of the people, but at the same time, they have drawn upon him the implacable hatred of the federal leaders and the unscrupulous denunciation of the hired minions of the bank.

In education and mental powers, Mr. Polk is at least equal to the federal candidate, and in all the qualities that should be expected of a peaceable and moral man, he is far superior to him as one man can be to another.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

THE NOMINATIONS.

From the Baltimore Republican and the James K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

We have never seen a nomination to be received with such approval as that of Mr. Polk, the nominee for such a majority of feeling towards the nomination, and yet so many of those who have been so successful that of J. K. POLK.

Mr. Polk's powerful efforts to the democratic cause have given him a strong hold upon the affections of the people, but at the same time, they have drawn upon him the implacable hatred of the federal leaders and the unscrupulous denunciation of the hired minions of the bank.

In education and mental powers, Mr. Polk is at least equal to the federal candidate, and in all the qualities that should be expected of a peaceable and moral man, he is far superior to him as one man can be to another.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

The Daily Morning Post.

PITTSBURGH, TUESDAY, JUNE 4, 1844.

FOR PRESIDENT, JAMES K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, GEO. M. DALLAS, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

FOR GOVERNOR, H. A. MUHLENBERG.

DO NOT FORGET THE MEETING TONIGHT.—It will be held in front of Capt Broadhurst's Mansion House, and we can assure the public that it will be a successful one.

FOR AND DALLAS.—The Globe of Friday night says:—While we are making up this paper, there is the largest political meeting we ever saw in this district, assembled in front of our office to ratify the democratic nominations for President and Vice President, made at Baltimore.

WAR AND ANTIMONARCHY.—THE ROMAN CATHOLIC ALLEGHENY.—The wig wearers of this city and Allegheny, have nominated the following ticket, which the Wigs and Anti-Monarchic Convention on Wednesday, will of course ratify.

CONGRESS.—C. DARRAGH, SENATOR.—Thomas J. Bigham, late of Dauphin Co. John Wilson, of Jefferson; J. W. E. Shaw, Versailles, BS Cassat, Allegheny.

THE MAGNETIC TELEGRAPH.—The business men of Baltimore and Washington are already turning the Magnetic Telegraph to good account in their business.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION.

My worthy friends this is no joke.

The nominee is Mr. Polk.

Let every democratic citizen exert himself to make him O. D.

Mr. Phillips.—On Saturday last our committee on Sixth street, in committee of the whole, to consider upon the grade of that street, which is now under the consideration of the city council.

In December, 1837, Mr. Polk was placed on the important committee of foreign affairs. He was also placed on the committee on the petition of the citizens of the State of Tennessee, for the admission of that State into the Union.

In 1833, then in his 28th year, he was chosen to represent his country in the legislature of Tennessee. He was re-elected in 1834, 1835, 1836, and 1837.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

TORNADO.

Eight Houses blown down—two Steamboats injured.

We learn by the offices of the Sea Bird, arrived at what from below, that a tornado swept over the country bordering on the Ohio river on Saturday last.

Another part of their scheme is this, (which they do not intend to make public) is to build a canal from the Ohio river to the city of Smithfield, which will be a saving to the city of perhaps fifty or sixty thousand dollars.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

THE NOMINATIONS.

From the Baltimore Republican and the James K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

We have never seen a nomination to be received with such approval as that of Mr. Polk, the nominee for such a majority of feeling towards the nomination, and yet so many of those who have been so successful that of J. K. POLK.

Mr. Polk's powerful efforts to the democratic cause have given him a strong hold upon the affections of the people, but at the same time, they have drawn upon him the implacable hatred of the federal leaders and the unscrupulous denunciation of the hired minions of the bank.

In education and mental powers, Mr. Polk is at least equal to the federal candidate, and in all the qualities that should be expected of a peaceable and moral man, he is far superior to him as one man can be to another.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

THE NOMINATIONS.

From the Baltimore Republican and the James K. POLK, OF TENNESSEE.

We have never seen a nomination to be received with such approval as that of Mr. Polk, the nominee for such a majority of feeling towards the nomination, and yet so many of those who have been so successful that of J. K. POLK.

Mr. Polk's powerful efforts to the democratic cause have given him a strong hold upon the affections of the people, but at the same time, they have drawn upon him the implacable hatred of the federal leaders and the unscrupulous denunciation of the hired minions of the bank.

In education and mental powers, Mr. Polk is at least equal to the federal candidate, and in all the qualities that should be expected of a peaceable and moral man, he is far superior to him as one man can be to another.

It is a common thing that Mr. Polk is not known to the country, because he is not notorious to these charges, which their own leaders have fastened upon Mr. Polk.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

Mr. Polk's father was an unassuming but enterprising farmer. He was the pioneer of his own fortunes, and a warm supporter of Mr. Jefferson's administration.

BOOKS FOR SALE, CHEAP.

GOOD assortment of family, religious, and school books and testaments, including the works of the American poets, lives of the great men, and a variety of the most useful books, for sale low.

By the Month. 30 Doz. Scotch Bibles, a superlative article, received and for sale by GEO. COCHRAN.

SALE AT 2500 LBS. OR GREATER. Sale of 1000 lbs. W. H. Chesnut, 20 lbs. No. 1, 6 lbs. No. 2, 10 do ground, 10 do superfine, 10 do extra, 10 do store and for sale by J. D. WILLIAMS.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.

Patent Improved Lead Pipe. The undersigned has for sale for the use of farmers and others, a very light LEAD PIPE, for conducting water from springs at great distances, under slight pressure or head of water, and for other purposes.