Never before has a public man been honored by the support een First and Second of truer, firmer, or more disinterested friends than of truer, firmer, or more disinterested friends than they have been to mo. In prosperity I have scarcely known where to find them; in adversity they have been with me always. Through evil and through good report, I have found the masses of the New York democracy the same unobtrusive, but unshrinking friends. The happiest, by far the happiest day in my whole political career was that in which, on my return from Washington, they met me on the Battery, in the m dst of a storm of wind and rain, which would have kept fair-weather friends at home, and extended to me. private citizen like themselves, their hard hands and opened their honest hearts in a welcome as cordial as respectfully solicited.

anded to any part of ces to satisfy them that I shall be ever thankful for their unsurpassed devotion to my welfare—they know that I can never cease to cherish with grateful recollections the honored relation of Representative and Constituent which has existed between us for so long a period, in such varied forms and which is now forever closed.

I have the honor, gentlemen to be very respectfully, your friend and obe M. VAN BUREN. o Gansevoort Melville, Richard B. Connoly, Wm. A. Walker, and W. B. M'Murray, Esqs., Committee. POLK AND DALLAS.
