"I will give you every particular of our interview" most willingly," said James Crofton. "Yesterday, evening I was caught in a shower of rain in the Strand," and as at that moment I rested my eyes on a bill anfrouncing that ac elebrated conjurer (or illusionist, believe is the fashionable term) was exhibiting his trickeries, I was tempted to walk in principally procure shelter, but was really very well amused. had not been long there when Seyton arrived and took the vicant seal by my side; we told me, that having an idle evening on his hands, he thought that he would me and see if he could peactrate into the mysterie of legerdemain; we conversed together very amicably and pleasantly, and even held a piece of tape between us which the man of magic, after cutting through the middle, succeeded in to-uniting. I never saw Seyton in better spirits; and I assure you that I neither said

-nor did any thing to depress them." The frank, good-natured openness of the young man carried conviction with it: Miss Hartopp's fear was converted into indignation: in her "mind's eye" she saw on one side her own blighted hopes, slighted of fections, ruined feathers, and soaked slippers; and on the other the conjuror, the crowded audience, and the laughing false one who had so cruelly sported with her feelings.

"I do not take the slightest interest in Mr Seyton," she said, tessing her head; "I think him the least agreeable young man I ever saw in my life." "Not quite so bad as that," said James Crofton, smiling with infinite delight; but upon my word, you show great judgment in your opinion of him; he is not at all deserving of the attention of so fair a lady." "Davison, you may go," said Miss Hartopp, sinking

The conversation between the young people lasted for an hour; when Mc Croften entered the drawing room, his handsome sen advanced to meet him, looking, as the Fersians say, "as brilliant as the sun, and as placid as the moon;" and Miss Hartopp ran up stairs, and communicated to Davison that she had just accepted James Crofton. Davison instantly wrote to me an account of the affair; she put her letter in the post that evening, and it reached me on Thursday, in sufficient time to prevent me from feeling any incli-nation to go and dine with my friend at Richmond. I wrote to Miss Hartopp under cover to Davison exing the circumstances, and (forgetting for the time my bad writing) imploring her to refer to my letter, when she would find that I had requested her to meet me two evenings later than the one which she had con claded me to name. She did refer to my letter, found what any jury in the world would have unanimously be an unquestionable Tuesday, and enclosed it to me in a blank cover with the word scored under!

For the Removal of Deformities of the Human Frame and of Diseases of the Eye. HE subscriber has returned to the city and intends to establish an Infirmant for the recoption and treatment of deformed members, such as Club or Reeled feet, contracted joints, dog-neck and Strabism or Squinting, and of Diseases of the Eye.

There is no Institution of this kind as yet in this ountry, though much needed.

Patients from a distance would find it to their advantage to be operated on and to be attended to in an establishment exclusively devoted to the restoration of the above named deformities and diseases The easy access to Pittsburgh, one of the healthiest spots in the country, by river and canel, almost at sky season of the year, would offer great facilities bose desirous of being relieved. His ample experience and well known success gives sufficient guaranty that the welfare of those entrusted to his care will be greatly promoted.
