Deferred Articles. Mr Allen, in his work descriptive of the march through Schude, presents the following scene, a fine comment on military glory:—"The entrance to the pass would have formed a fine subject for Salvator Rose. The sun had not risen and the gorge looked dark, gloomy, and threatening. I was between the quarter master-general's party and the column; consequently there were but few people, and one or two officers acai tered about. The craggy and fantastic rocks towered almost perpendicularly on both sides, many of then quite so, to an enormous height. The fore-ground was occupied by the skeletons of the ill-fated troops, with the larger forms of camels and the horses. The gray light of morning scarcely allowed the eye to penetrate the pass, which appeared entirely shut in. Lurge carrion crows and vultures with flapping wings, were soaring heavily over head. As we entered, the ghastfrequent.
