There was no remedy; and it was not until after the happy pair had been made man and wife, that Van Elburg could succeed in catching his friend alone.
"I am bound to deliver you four hundred thousas herrings in fourteen days," said he, "and not a single fish can I get at any price."

Woorden could not restrain his laughter. "I dare say not," he replied, "I boughs them all up long ago."
"In that case of course our contract is at an and," said Van Eiburg, looking doubtfully at his friend." "By no means; or at least only on certain conditions.
We have this day united our children, Van Elburg, and we shall leave them a handagne fortune when we and we shall seave them a handsome fortune when we die. Bet as regards the present, matters are less fairly arranged. My son receives a capital business, while you only give your daughter four thousand ducats.

Now as I did not like to make the young people unhappy by refusing my consent to their marriage, I thought you and I would settle the matter another You have to deliver four hundred thousand herrings at telliguildings per thousand, you can get them from no one but me, and I must have fifty guildens per thousand, or I don't part with a single tail. The difference is exactly sixteen thousand guildings, which I intend you to pay over to my sonas his wife's dowry.'

And Eiburg looked rather foolish during this explanation, but at the end he gained his self-passession, and even smiled as he said, clapping the other on the shoulder. You have outwitted me, Mynheer Woerden, and I must pay the penalty, so no more about it. And now let us join our friends again. Eight days afterward Tan Elburg went to visit his daughter at Amsterdam, and in his turn found Woerden h the greatest perplexity. "You are the very person I wanted," said he, seizing his hand: "Unless you can assist me I am a ruined man. The herrings are all ready, but high or low, not a barrel is to be found" Yan Elburg's little grey eyes twinkled cunningly.—
