The blow given to John Oothout fractured his skull, and caused his death soonafterwards. A corener's inquest was held upon the body, at whit the old lady and her son Benjamin avowed their firm belief that Christopher C. Day with whom, they had lodged while in New York, was the person who had overtaken them and committed. was the person who had overtaken them and committed and arrest the supposed highway robber and murderer. A few weeks since the old lady and her son Benjamin returned to this region of the country to accomplish their previous intention. On arriving at Bultimore the three horses taken from them at the time of the murder and robbery were traced, and the description of the person who had sold them confirmed their previous suspicions against Duvis. A warrant was therefore obtained for his apprehension in Baltimore, on a charge of grand larceny, and the old larly and son then came to

The facts were communicated to the police, and ofcurs Cockefuir and Beman were selected to find Davis. They traced him from his former residence, in to read the following remarks made by the Gazette in Amos street, to the town of Secucus, New Jersey, about six miles from Hoboken, where he has been residing on a farm that he has leased; he was then ar-rested and taken before Justice Michael Sounier, and the old lady and her son Benjamin immediately recognized Davis as the person who had committed the m der and robbery. The Justice having a strange idea of the principles of justice, or the amount of i should be required it a case involving so much enormity, said, on hearing the testimony, "that it was a very heinous offence, and he should therefore be compelled to order Davis to find bail in the sum of $250, and entheir attention." ter into his own recognizance in a similar amount to appear for trial. The officers from this city were thus lared in a peculiar position. They had traced the man, secured his arrest, brought him before the magis-York and have them arrested on the charge. This was a god-send for the omeers, and they immediately see-anded his inclinations. He harnessed up a fast team, sons whom he had charged with petit larceny. The officers kent a close watch on his movements, and made immediate application to Justice Drinker for his detention The application was granted, and Davis was committed to the Tombs to swait a further examination on the charges alleged against him.

A CASE OF HORRID CRUELTY. A free man of color, named Etienne Fortier, was arrested at New Orleans, on the 24th ult. for inhuman treatment toward two of his slaves. We learn from the Daily Republican, that officers were despatched to the residence of Fortier, where they found a negro girl named Mary, aged about 18, chained heavily by the ed in the last stage of weakness and suffering, through excessive whitping.
