THE "HICKORY TREE."

Tobacco Factories Sold.

Tobacco Factories for sale.
The Tree commands everything.
Which, logically speaking, is true.
Their public business every day in the year.
Is now [very] fashionable to go
To the Hickory Tree.
And the last moment's tally,
From commerce and folly,
Is the Hickory Tree.

The cigars are the finest,
The Chewing pass in rank power to Clay;—
The Snuff
Is the very first rate,
And everything else, each article
Is the best of its kind.
Apart from the Hickory brier.
Great breeder and keeper, alone of the free:
Come from each assembly
Like bees, to refreshen his "HICKORY TREE."

The constant carrending
Of the tobacco bale spirits can cheer:
Nor the tobacco they wonder,
There, bilder, and Lorrd cedar and beer:
And tobacco in every shape,
The assemblin are living,
Their every charge they're trying
To carry the day at the factory planter
To come to the Hickory Tree.
Come down from each assembly;
Applied to the shade of the [illegible] Tree.

CLAY'S SOLILOQUY—NOT HAMLET'S.

BY CHESS.

To be, or not to be, Senator Mason shall we measure,
What will the people and circumstance, upon
Of the Locofoco Senate Act, if we be,
The Presidential Chair, either my purpose!
Or to sit still in the Senate Chamber,
We cannot be sure, but I'll be sure,
To act this evil [illegible] Locofocos,
To make [illegible] Locofocos,
To make [illegible] Locofocos,
To make
