

FOR PRESIDENT, JAMES K. POLK, OF KENTUCKY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, GEO. M. DALLAS, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

FOR GOVERNOR, FRASER B. SHUNK, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER, JOSHUA HARTSHORNE, OF OHIO.

ALEXANDER BRACKENRIDGE, FR. STATE SENATE.

CLAMBERS McKIBBIN, CHIEF ASSEMBLY.

JAMES A. GIBSON, PHO. JOHN ANDERBERG, PHO.

JAMES WHITEAKER, MR. STEPHENS WOODS, ROBINSON.

WILLIAM EWING, ROBINSON. Auditor.

EDWARD MCCOY, INDIANA.

In a speech made in Congress, in the session of 1832-33, on the tariff question Mr. Polk said:

The wool growers consider the duty upon foreign wool an important tributary property. THIS OPINION I A FULLY UNDERSTAND TO BE FOUNDED IN ERROR.

MY OWN OPINION IS THAT WOOL SHOULD BE DUTY FREE, but as wool growers think otherwise, we have retained a duty of FIFTEEN PER CENT, upon the imported article.

was engaged in a duel which terminated fatally. Mr. Clay has been charged with three duels, and would have been engaged in many more had it not been for the intervention of friends in the latter case, and the cessation of the law in the latter case is now undoubted facts to keep the peace.

In 1825, he had a quarrel with Col. Davis and the friends of the parties prevented a duel.

In 1826, he challenged John Randolph, but he did not kill him, he tried to verify a hand.

In 1828, he wrote the challenge to Clifty, for his friend Graves—Graves succeeded better in his bloody purpose—and, according to the whig rule applied to La Branche, Graves is a murderer. What shall we call HENRY CLAY, his intimate friend, adviser and accomplice?

It is evident, from these facts, that the man and the press who support CLAY, can have no serious objection to duelling, carried on in its most wanton and sanguinary mode.

Why, then, do these men hypocritically denounce Mr. La Branche as a murderer? Because they know that in the North, the people have a horror and detestation of duelling—because they know, in the language of the Gazette, there is an "influence abroad among the people in opposition to duelling."

"Because," says the Gazette, "it is to be expected that the man who is a duelist, duels with a sword, but a man who is a duelist, duels with a pen."

But do these federal editors suppose that by affecting a horror of duelling, and expressing it in the manner they have done in Mr. La Branche's case, that they can atone for Mr. Clay's transgressions in this respect? Do they imagine they will be permitted to denounce Democrats who have fought duels as murderers?

It is in the eyes of the friends of the northern states, who are in the eyes of the friends of the federal leaders? Why do they retreat, with confusion and dismay, from a point of attack on the Democratic candidate, which they thought would be of vast advantage and importance to them?

To the Whigs who have the cool impudence to say that the man who shot the "Federalist," is his best friend, we submit the following, from the Madisonian:

MESSRS. CLAY AND WEBSTER. "The braggart editor of the New York Courier and Enquirer is informed, that should Mr. Webster advocate the election of Mr. Clay on the ground that he is an undeviating friend of protection, we may be induced to bring forward a document, furnished to a member of Congress, by Mr. Webster himself, which will incontrovertibly establish the fact that Mr. Clay, in the committee-room, proposed to abandon all protection articles manufactured in the United States."

We are likewise prepared to prove that Mr. Webster authorized the M.C. to publish the evidence placed in his possession. Hence, we shall not violate any rule of propriety in publishing the letter furnished by Mr. W., and subsequently placed in our possession."

This proposition of Mr. CLAY to "abandon protection" is however inconsistent with what his friends say of his love for the Tariff; is perfectly in keeping with his aversion that he had "devoted himself, for the last few years of his public life, to the redaction of duties."

PAINTER AND DISTRESSING AFFAIR. We have been in the possession, for several days, of the particulars of the painful death of a beautiful and interesting young lady, in the western section of this State.

She was overheard, however, by her younger sister, who then fled to her mother's room, and immediately took her into her arms, and she died.
