Beferred Articles. FAITHLESS NELLY GRAY. BY THOMAS BOOD. Ben Battle was a soldier bold, And used to war's alarms, But a cannon ball took off his legs, So he laid down his arms! Now, as they bore him off the field, Said he, 'Let others shoot, For here I leave my second leg, In the Forty-second Foo! The army surgeons made him limbs; Said be, 'they'r only pegs— But there's as wooden members quite As represents my legs! Now Ben he loved a pretty maid, Her name was Nelly Gray! So he went to pay her his devoirs, When he'd devoured his pay! But when he called on Nelly Gray, She made him quite a scuff, Began to take them off! O, Nolly Gray! O, Nelly Gray!
Is this your love so warm? The love that loves a scarlet cost Should be more uniform Said she, 'I loved a soldier once, For he was blithe and brave; But I will never have a man With both legs in the grave! Before you had those timber toes, Your love I did allow, But then, you know, you stand upon Another footing now! O, Nelly Gray! O, Nelly Gray! For all your jeering speeches, At duty's call, I left my legs 'Why then,' said she, 'you've lost the feet Of legs in war's alarms, And now you cannot wear your shoes Upon your feats of arms? O, false and fickle Nelly Gray! I know why you refuse.
Though I've no feet, some other man Is standing in my shoes! 'I wish I had not seen your face; But, now, a long farewell! For you will be my death—alas!
You will not be my NELL! Now, when he went from Nelly Gray, His heart so heavy got, And life was such a burden grown, It made him take a knot! So round his melancholy neck A rope he did entwine, And, for the second time in life, One end he tied around a beam, And then removed his pegs. And, as his legs were off, of course He soon was off his legs! And there he hung, till he was dead As any nail in town—

For though distress had cut him up,

It could not cut him down! Fover and Agno Positively Cured by the Medicated Vapor Bath.
