In asserting your change of quasion from the masserting your change of the subscriber of the Compression of the Compr ed to be utterly ruinque to our domestic men changed its character from the anecches of its sucher made in its fayor. Though after carefully reading these speeches I could not arrive at the same condision, I most cheerfully concede to you my belief in the sincerity of your convictions in opposition to mine, and admitting their force for the sake of argument, or sale er that the consequences may not be overlooked. I may be permitted to ask you a few questions suggested by your last letter. You say you changed your views of the minous consequences to the manufacturers as the ty as they did in 1833, it must necessarily follow, in your judgment, that the Compromise ect must spill become the law of the land, and that the ect of 1843 ought to be repealed! If you say that the entry principles and reasons contained in the speeches have no larger any force, then your Washington latter, of February, 1833, cannot be shaken in its application to Mr Clay at this time. It is rectantly a safetile to the content of the safetile time. and Mr Clay must be the enemy to protection the you denounced him to the world to be; for you could not have noticed that in his late Raleigh species as professes still to adhere to the principles of the Can rest of his life. Now, sir, here is a dilemma from which it is impossible to escape.

From Mr. Clay's speeches you were satisfied that supporting it, he gave distinct and positive yieldest by the South, that as far as depended upon him: and the friends the principles of that Act should remain the acttled and permanent policy of the construction of that the remains the say that the remains the gave on that occasion induces you to change your opinion and agree with him as an the benefits which would result from the Act: Fines which either confirms human forecast or shows its life. ly, has left nothing for conjecture or speculi
