EXTRIORDINARY BLUNDERS. The Charleston Mercury exposes several extraordinary blunders committed by Mr Webster in his speech at Albany. It is habitual with Mr Webster, in nearly at Albany. It is habitual with Mr Webster, in nearly all his extemporaneous addresses, (says the New York Evening Post) to make these gross inisstatements of freeding for their friends, to come out from any part forces indeed it would be be being this time initial. Evening Post) to make these gross misstatements of facts; indeed, it would not be doing him injustice to suppose either, that he uses figures at hazard without regard to their accuracy, or that he purposely misres forward with despatch. They are also prepared to resents in order to deceive the public. A single mistrain monies by drafts payable throughout the United take, in the course of a long speech, is a thing that Kingdom to prepare passengers for the voyage. Permight be expected and forgiven, but the frequent and repeated errors of Mr Webster betray a culpable carelessness, or a wilful disregard of truth. Here is the article of the Mercury:

Mr Webster's recent speech in Albany, produced an effect here amounting almost to astonishment. It seems unaccountable, if his gross mistakes are excused as unintentional that a man who has been all his.

Apply to, or address. JOHN HERDMAN sed as unintentional, that a man who has been all his life engaged in public affairs, should be so profoundly ignorant and equally unaccountable, if he wished to give the protective party the benefit of a fresh manufacture of facts—that he should take so little pains to conceal the grossness of fabrication in the gloss of the febric. We will give a few specimens.

He says that Massachusetts consumes of tar, pitch, &c, from North Carolina, to the amount of 1,000,000 annually. Now we have made diligent inquiry, and find that the entire export of those articles from that state, but little exceeds a half a million of dollars, and of this it is estimated Europe consumes about nine-He says that Massachusetts consumes annually $300,-

030 of South Carolina Rice. If he had consulted the prices current, he would have found that the entire shipment does not exceed 9000 casks, which, at $17 por cask, is worth $153,000—and of this but a small portion is actually consumed in Massachusetts.

Again he says M is sachusetts, tikes $7,000,000 worth of cotton annually. Now the entire consumption of cotton in the United States is not over 400 000 bales, which at $20 per bale—the average value for some years past—is worth only, $8.0,00,000. The number Cotton manufactories in the United States since 1843 (see American Almanac, page 145) was 1240, with an aggregate capital of $15,765,124—of which 278 were in Mussachusetts, with a capital of $1,178,85. On a comparison of these figures, it does not appear that Massachusetts consumes more than 100,000 bales of cotton annually, which at $20 per bale, is worth only two, instead of seven millions of dollars. This is what Mr. Webster calls taking a practical view of the advantages of a protective policy.

SUPERFINE BLACK, BLUE, INVISIBLE letter from Boston to a New York merchant, has an indirect confirmatory appearance:

"The bunting, which you seem to think has all been brought up by Government for the US Navy, has been purchased, I suspect, on Mexican account. The agents of the Mexican Republic are doing a great business here in tents, &c. There is no bunting left in our market, except a few pieces moth eaten."
