Christianity.—Christianity, like a child, goes wanply of country moschants, to which their attention is invited, at his old stand, corner of Front and Wood streets.

HENRY HIGBY. rior sheaths his sword, and plucks the laurel from his brow; the midnight murderer turns from his purpose, and like the heart-smitten disciple, goes out and weeps bitterly. It brings liberty to the captive, joy to the mourner, freedom to the slave, repeniance can forgiveness to the samer, hope to the faint heared, and assurance to the dying. It enters the hots of poor men, and sits down with them and their children; it makes them contented in the midst of privations, and leaves behind an everlasting blessing. It walks through great cities amidall their pomp and imaginable pride and their unutterable misery, a purlor and all imaginable pride and their unutterable misery, a purfying, ennobling, correcting and redeeming angel. It is alike the beautiful companion of childhood and the comfortable associate of Marge. It ennobles the fidelity gives wisdom to the rise; and new grace to the lovely. The patriet, the priest, the poet, and the above their sublime power from its light for the state.
