LETTER FROM GOV. PORTER.

☞ In consequence of a report being in circulation that Gov Porter had expressed himself favorable to the election of Mr Clay and intended to support him, a letter was addressed to him by a gentleman of this vicinity on that subject. The reply of his Excellency, as it appears below, has been handed us for publication. It speaks to the point and must silence all those desirous of misrepresenting the Governor's position and opinions.

Mr John Koons:

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of the 25th ult., is before me. I did not suppose it would be necessary to contradict the idle report, that you inform me has been circulated in your county since I passed through it. I have been a voter over 30 years, and have never voted for any other than the Democratic candidates; and now that my hairs have grown gray in the cause of Democracy, it is not very likely that I should turn my coat. I have never expressed any such opinion, either in your county, or elsewhere, as that which you say has been attributed to me. I regard the election of JAMES K POLK, as absolutely certain.
Please accept the best wishes of
Your friend,
DAVID R. PORTER.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION—LOSS OF LIFE!!

The steamboat Tigress, from New York, for Philadelphia, while coming up the Bay, on Sunday afternoon, about half-past three o'clock, and when off Nantucket Creek, ten miles below Bombay Hook, collapsed her steam chimney, scalding the second engineer, Nicholas Ashby, and Thomas Shay, deck hand, so severely, that they expired in three hours after the accident. The explosion was almost precisely similar to that which occurred on board the steamer Portsmouth last summer. The steamer Ashland was about half a mile astern of the Tigress at the time of the accident, and took off the wounded men. The latter boat arrived here yesterday morning with the dead bodies.

An inquest was held upon the bodies of the deceased on board of the Ashland, by the Coroner, and the jury rendered a verdict of "death from the accidental collapsing of the inner casing of the steam chimney of the steamer Tigress, on the Delaware Bay, near Bombay Hook, on the 20th of October, 1844.

Ashby belonged to New York, where he had a wife. He was an industrious temperate, and pious man.—Shay, who was an Irishman, had no friends in this country. The former was about 30, and the latter 35 years of age.—Sp. of Times.

ROW IN A LONDON THEATRE.

Mr Kirby.—We notice the following in the London Globe:—"On Thursday evening, during the performance of the play of Othello at the Victoria Theatre, the audience were much excited by an announcement from the management. Towards the close of the play, and just before the last act was to be represented, Mr Osbaldiston came forward and addressed the audience as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am placed in a most painful position. I know not what to say. (Sensation.) Mr Kirby, who has been drunk to-night, has insulted the whole company, and without saying a word to me has left the house." (Cries of "it's a lie, Mr Kirby is not drunk.") Mr Osbaldiston proceeded—"If it's your wish, I will send after him, and try to get him on." (Great confusion.) Several gentleman in the pit rose and essayed to speak. One gentleman, after the confusion had subsided, said, "Ladies and gentlemen, it is untrue to say that Mr Kirby is drunk; I have just seen him, and he is as sober as any person in the house at this moment. The fact is, Mr Osbaldiston has grossly insulted Mr Kirby by telling Miss Vincent, in the presence of the whole company, not to speak the speeches, but to come to cues, and not be humbugged by the ——— Yankee.—(Great sensation.) Mr Kirby has just attempted to enter the theatre and explain to you the nature of the gross insult offered him, but Mr Osbaldiston has ordered the door-keepers not to admit him." Great confusion followed the gentleman's remarks, and a noise at the box entrance added not a little to the uproar; and upon inquiry it was found that Mr Osbaldiston and Mr. Kirby was at the door, the latter gentleman having paid for a box ticket, and the former refused him admittance. The house thinned after the above affair, and the other pieces went off very tamely."

Making Good Corn Bread.—The ladies who read our paper—and are they not all the good housewives of our city?—will thank us for the following receipt for making excellent corn bread. We get it from "Cousin Polly" of the Western Cultivator. Take as much corn meal as you wish to cook, scald it well by pouring boiling water over it and stirring it thoroughly, then mix it to the consistency of batter, with milk; if it is pretty rich it won't hurt it; but mind the mixing part; that it is thoroughly done the more the better. Putin one egg, a tea spoonful of saleratus, and a table spoonful or more of lard. Mix the whole thoroughly together, till the ingredients are entirely incorporated through the whole: mind, I say the mixing, the more the better. It is now to be baked as usual, about three-quarters of an hour, and you will have the finest corn bread you ever ate."

New Discoveries.—The whigs have lately made two important discoveris. The first is, that the High Tariff of 1842, has greatly increased our importations of foreign merchandize. The second is, that foreign manufacturers are sending over great quantities of British gold to carry the election of Jas K Polk in this country, in order to put down the Tariff that has created such a great additional demand for their foreign goods!

Poor whiggery! As soon as it has lied with all its might to make the people believe one thing, whiggery finds it necessary to turn round and lie twice as hard to make them believe the reverse.—Lewis. Dem.

Blood and Thunder! who throwed that last Brick?—The last Commonwealth winds up an excruciating militia-muster harangue on the British Gold humbug with this thrilling finale: "BUT WILL WE SUBMIT? No! by the God of our Revolutionary forefathers, no never!"

That reminds us of a startling description of a thrilling incident we saw some where lately, as follows:

"And scarce had I progressed to midway in the park, when, while the growling Heavens sent down its illuminated cataracts, and the riven forest sent back the echoing thunders to the vaulted sky, an infuriated bull, couching his horned lances and rearing his tremendous tail, came dashing at me across the green—it was a fearful crisis. But, summoning all my presence of mind, I rushed like lightning through the fence—the thunder roared, the terrible animal bellowed behind me—faint with terror at length I reached the fence—instantly I climbed it, and in getting over it I tore all the seat of my pantaloons off!"

Fat Men and Lean Men.—Fat men, says an old author, feel certain of their existence. They have a tangibility not easily disturbed. Hence, their easy, quiet, and good natured life. The thin man, on the contrary, must make up in momentum what he wants in ponderosity. Hence this ceaseless activity, his bustling propensities. The fat man, notwithstanding his bulk, is ever the readiest to make room in a coach: a proof that he is as much of a man of feeling as in size. The fat man is like the most perfect of figures—the sphere; the lean man, poor fellow, can only be compared to the plainest and simplest—the line.

An Indefatigable.—A police officer of Philadelphia, on Thursday morning, arrived at the wharf in a steam boat having in custody a thief whom he had pursued and caught. The officer fell asleep just before arriving, which circumstance the thief took advantage of by stealing the officer's wallet, and walking off.
