Iusanity and Suicide. - A young man by the name of Kulp, says the Buffalo Courier of the 19th inst., a bont 18 or 19 years of age, committed suicide yester day, by throwing himself into the Niagura river at Black Bock. He had been for some time infatuated with the Millerite delusion, and for the last two or three days so completely insene that it was found ne-cessary to confine him in the house. By some means lay he broke out and started off in the direction yostenday he proce out and starting the light start of Black Rock. His father immediately missed and pressed him, but found it impossible to overtake him before he reached the river, into which he instantly threw himself, and was drowned. The distance from house to the river cannot be less than three and a half or four miles, and this whole distance he through the woods and fields, followed by his afflicted fathor who vainly struggled to overtake him. Another victim has thus been added to the list of lives lo:
