EXPRESSES. - The most extraordinary things of the present ago are the expresses by which the whigs get the first retorns of the elections that take place. No ring can equal them in speed except Morse's Telegraph, or a "streak of greased lightning;" and we believe, that in a case of great emergency to the party. the Whig Expresses could beat a flash of electricity "all to thunder." The great speed with which our whig friends transmit election news-we cannot call it information—was never made so apparent as during the present contest. To say that they have it in "adcance of the mails," would give but a faint idea of WHO IS JAMES K. POLK? their smartness, and if it were not for one little objection, itwould not surprise us if the whig expresses should, in a short time, completely eclipse the fame of Morse and his Telegraph. But like all new and great inventions, whig expres- which show total majorities as follows: and are, as yet, somewhat imperfect, and it is feared ahat no time will enable the inventors to correct the wils. The only serious objection to this modern inwintion is that it was never known to carry a word of truth, and from all the news it ever brought, a word of correct information has never been extracted. For instance, the first day after the Virginia election, the whigs learned by their extraordinary express that the state had gone for Clay by a handsome majority. This was, of course, falsified by the correct returns. Their next grand effort was from New York, and by the speed and accuracy with which the returns reached us, it was clearly shown that the express was a genuine

On Thursday morning, one day after the election, they had a full account from New York city, by what shey called the Ashland Express, and the majority for Clay was 8343, precisely. This kept the whigs in a glorious humor all day, and they thought nothing could compare with the Ashland Express, but in the evening the mail came creeping along, and not only demolished the whole whig majority of 8343, but showed that the Gothomites had given upwards of 2000 against the great embodiment of whiggery.

We only cite these two instances from many, to show the smartness of whig expresses and to commend it to public patronage whenever the proprietors can get them to tell any thing like the truth.
