REMARKABLE DELIVERANCE FROM DEATH. r, an account of Stephen and Jesse Boorn, who were sentenced to be executed for the alleged murder of Russel Colvin,

There is now lying in the jail of Providence county. in this city, a man who is sentenced to die by the nouncing the sentences of the law, when the verdictell at such prices as will make it the interest of purof the jury had rendered the work no longer optional. evidence exclusively circumstantial, and as the sub-FLE BARRELS AND GUN TRIMMINGS, ject of capital punishment is engrossing no small share PLANES, COOPERS, CARPENTERS AND of public attention at the present time, we have been the unreliable character of this species of evidence, however strong, and how a remarkable coincidence of circumstances may sometimes constitute an apparent complete proof of the guilt of a person, who is in fact ind Tea ware.

Also, a general stock of articles suitable for the supvin, about the year 1802. Colvin, always a man, of feeble mind, was often laboring under actual deangement. When these seasons arrived, he common ly left the place; and as he was incapable of taking cere of his family, a wife and two sons, his absence excited the less attention and regret. At one time be was gone some nine or ten months, and was heard of from this State (Khode Island) as being here. On the 7th day of May, 1813, he suddenly disappeared. This, as may reasonably be supposed, excited but little attention at first, owing to his well known character and habits. It was supposed that after an absence of a few weeks or months he would return as usual. Soon after, however, suspicions of foul play arose, and rumors were that he had been murdered. Occasional remarks thrown out by the Booms, tended to fasten suspicion upon them as the perpetrators Dreams, too, it appears, were not wanting to confirm the impression, and to guide the fancies of an illiterate and excited people. Mr Boom, an uncle to Stephen and Jesse, a man of high respectability, dreamed that Russel Colvin, came to his bedside, told him that he had been murdered, and stated that if he would rise and follow him, he would lead him to the spot where he was buried. Mr Boorn appears to have accepted this proposal. The place which he afterwards pointed out to his neighbors, was one which had been much talked of previous to the dream. Here a bole had been made for burying potatoes, but it was now filled up. On opening the potatoe pit, which was about four feet, nothing was found except a large knife, a penknife, and a button. Mrs Colvin, before they were shown to her, described them accurately, and stated that the large knife and the button belonged to her husband. But there were things more worthy of notice than dreams, or than the discovery just mentioned, which sustained the popular suspicion. A lad with a dog one day going from Mr Barna Boorn's, father of the suspected persons, was stopped by the strange conduct of the spaniel, which put his feet against his young master, whined and retreated to a little distance, as though desirous that he should follow him. The boy the importers, the following calebrated brands of from the path. The dog drew out a number of bones from under the roots of the stump, and on a further examination being made, from the cavity of the stump were taken toe-nails, which had the appearance of having belonged to a human foot. Other nails were found in a crumbled state, as though they had passed through the fire. A court of enquiry was held; the bones were examined by physicians, who, with the exception of one of their number, thought them to be human.

A Mr. Salisbury, it appears, a person in the neighborhood, had had his leg amputated some years before.

The limb, which lay at the distance of four or five miles was dug up, and the bones in it were compared with those which had been found. The result was, that the ones discovered in the cavity of the stump were decided not to be human; but the nails found near them, it Vo. 101 Wood street, 4 doors above Diamond alley, was agreed on all hands, had belenged to some one of the human race. The ingenious credulity of the populace, too, found a way of accounting for the appear fire accidentally, as was supposed at the time, and been consumed. The Boorns had also a log heap Merchants and Manufacturers are respectfully invited to call and examine his stock before purchasing to have been committed. Hence the popular notion was that the body had been take 1 up and disposed so us to be consumed at one of these fires; that the work nad been partially effected, and the remaining bones, it was asserted, were concealed in the stump, having

He said he knew not where the body was buried; but he mentioned several places where he thought it might be found.— Search was accordingly made, but to no purpose. A deputation of three respectable citizens was now sent to New York, furnished with a warrant for the apprehension of Stephen. They proceeded with such AVING removed my manufactory from Birming expedition as to reach the place in three days Accompanied by a Mr Sylvester, the inn-keeper, together spectfully invite my friends and the public generally er with two other citizens, the house of Mr Stephen Boome, in the night, and arrested him without any difficulty. He denied the participation in, or knowledge of the murder, in the most positive terms. His wife was well nigh distracted with grief. The unwelcome, but honest visiters, touched by her distress, pacified her as well as they could, and made her point

Stephen was put in irons, brought to Manchester : and atfirst put in a cell apart from his brother. Soon afterwards, however, theams were confined in the same room. Stephen betraved great indignation at what he tained a severe deportment towards his brother. The Locks repaired and Keys fitted; also, Iron and Brass prisoners were subject to an examination of many days. Turning done in the best manner and at the shortest Jesse, after an interview with Stephen, recanted his previous declaration respecting the guilt of I. Poebles, Hardware Merchant, Market street, been induced to make was false. But another witness ittsburgh, will be thankfully received and meet with now appeared. Lewis Colvin, a son of the man who was supposed to have been murdered, said he saw his uncle Stephen knock down his father, was frightened and ran home. The prisoners were fully committed
