His career in France was rapid and brilliant. In 1796, he was the French Ambassador at Rome-subsequently a member of the Council of Five Hundred, and in 1800 a Counseller of State, in which capacity he, together with Roederer, concluded a commerial treaty between France and the United States .-He was the plenipotentiary who signed the treaty of Luneville, which gave peace to the continent in 1801 -and the treaty of piece with England at Amiene in

When the Empire arose, Napoleon being without male issue, Joseph and his brother Louis, and their descendants, were looked to as the successors of the Emperor; and then it was that Napuleon first required that Joseph, so distinguished in civil and diplomatic life, should put on the harness of the soldier.— He insisted that one to whom the succession might fall, should be versed in military, as well in civil conluct, and accordingly Joseph became Colonel of a regment to the famous Camp of Bologne.

While there, the crown of Lombardy was offered to nim, but he refused it because the Emperer made it a ondition of acceptance, that he should renounce his claim to the succession of the Empire, and moreover hat he should pay an annual tribute to France. In 1806, at the head of an army of 40,000 men, he NO. 17, FIFTH ST., PITTSBURGH.

Was commissioned to overthrow the throne of Queen Caroline. He subscriber has just erected a new and exten and his own brow bore the crown which he had conquered. His brief reign of two years was a succession ment, for he loved to do good.

From these scenes, so congenial to him, he was called by the Emperor in 1808, to Bayonne, and there the crown of Spain was forced upon him. In his new sphere he strove to adhere to his previous course, and by mildness and persuasion, and benefits conferred, to conciliate the affection of Spain. He even besought the Emperor to withdraw all the French troops, trusting by frank and loyal conduct towards the Spaniards to obtain their confidence and support. His request was not acceded to, and the hatred and jealousy of foreigners, which mark the Spanish character, exaspe-rated by the clergy, and encourage I by the presence of a large English army, rendered all Joseph's efforts for a peaceful success, such as he had accomplished in Naples, impossible. He was obliged to be the soldier and although worsted in the event, he gave in the various battle-fields where he was present, decisive indica-tion of courage and conduct. Wearled with a fruitless struggle which promised no opportunity for the ex-ercise of the kindly plans he alone desired to carry our in his new kingdom, he wrote to the Emperor on 23d March, 1812, from Madrid, earnestly asking permission to resign the crown that four years before had been mposed upon him.

In that letter he says: "I have done no good, and have no hope of doing any. In accepting the crown I had no other object in view than the promotion of the happiness of this great monarchy. It has not been in my power to accomplish it. I therefore ask to be received by your majesty as a simple subject." Permission was refused, but the fortune of war drove Joed to call and examine his stock before purchasing seph from his crown and kingdom, and he was once ore in France. The reverses of 1813-14, had overtaken French triumphs; the capital was menacod; Na-poleon with the fragment of his victorious armics was anceuvring between the Marne and the Seine, with the hope of covering Paris-but the overwhelming number of the adversary rendered success hopeless From Rheims in the 16th of March, 1814, he wrote HE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of the Joseph, to whom, on leaving Paris, he confided the Pittsburgh and the public generally that he has opened the above establishment for their accomedation.
