From the Evening Mirror WITHIN A PRISON. The writer is indebted, for the incident of the following Ballad, to the eloquent Mr. Gough. As once, within a prison's walls and the echoing floor,

and marked the dim and narrow cells,

back with its grated door:

Os one, a far-cast, slanting ray, From a narrow window high, Dropped faintly and revealed within, A saddened, blood shot eye. Through a little chink it wistful looked, To see one human face ;

Imploringly it begged of me

To tarry little space. It was a sad, sweet pleasure then, Whose thoughts of guilt, in his selitude, With his reason, riot ran.

"It is a blessed thing (he said) A kindly face to see!"-Two fingers through the little chink He strove to stretch to me He longed to touch a friendly hand-

To hear a friendly tone,— To feel that on God's happy earth And as that quiv'ring hand I held, And mark'd that tearful eye,

Soft pity moved my heart to ask That sad man's history. "What hast done, thou hapless one, That, in this gloomy cell,

Shut out from light, and love, and hope, Now close he pressed the iron door! And tighter grasp'd my hand. - That was a time-the happiest man

Was I in all the land. "A cheerful heart and stalwart strength The Lord had given me :-A pleasant cot-a little farm,

"My wife was pure as lily fuir-(Oh, we!-oh, wo is me!) And sweeter far than lilies are, And good as good could be. "I lov'd her dearly-lov'd my home,- lo little one had we-Hisband and wife; -she thought she knew No braver man than he "But evil spirits tempted me Towander from her love,— With eleated lip, wine caps to sip—

"In the accursed bowl were drowned My happiness and health.-Shipwrecked and lost: - and therewithal My modest store of wealth

"Had that been all, I still might be A boping man ence more,-But no'er can wealth, or weal, or health My priceless Jane testore. gentle wife began to droop, Like lily overborne;—

But sweeter grew, as lillies do, When lillies' leaves are torn. "How pale her beauteous face became, How thin her levely form! Her spirits fled-as rose tinte fade Before the wintry storm.

"Not one repreachful word she spake, r. murmur once did she .--When like a wretch I treated her, She like an angel, me

For when with drunken rage I came, A vile and cursing man, . Her blue eye she would fix on me, Whence silent tear-drops ran. " That was a scourge I could not bear-

It pierced me through and through; As day by day, time wore away, Surely it larger grew. "Paler became her pallid cheek-

Her face and form more thin; And in plain view, the veins traced through Her white, transparent skin. "But dreadful was that grieved look,-It was too hard to home

At home, by the way-in the cup every day-I saw it everywhere. "Where'er I went, I saw it still:

Still—still it followed me;—
It dreams of the night—in broad daylight—till—still that look I see. "Oneday with frenzy filled, I came: Her long gold hair adown her bare

And beauteous neck did flow. "She sat upon a broken chair, Her hands her face sustaining Her fingers through fast falling tears, Like autumn drops were rainipg.

"She rose, and turned on me that look! Within me demons wrought; With staggering pace, from out its place, My deadly gun I cought!

"I cannot tell thee any more-Death is too good for me;-But sometimes in the still, dark night, An angel's form I see. "Beside my lonely couch she stands, And kindly looks on me;

And whispers, that beyond the grave,

I may forgiven be.'

LAWRENCE MITCHELL. Pittsburgh, Nov. 19,1844-3md. Medicated Vapor Bath. A LETTER PROM DRS. LAWRENCE AND HENRICKSON.

New Lebanon, State of New York. Pance, Madison, Jainbridge, Louyan, St. Louis:

Of the Medicated Vavor Bach for four months past, in our societies in New Lebanon and Watervillet, we think it but justice to state, that we consider it a valuab mprovement in the healing art. Its power in reducing both chronic and acute inflamation, also in remov ing both chronic and acute infiamation, also in remov-ing spasms, is certainly very great. In cases of ob-structed perspiration, it is unquestionably the safest and best remedy that we have ever seen. Several persons in our society, who were scarcely free from a catarrhal affection during most of the winter months for several years past, have found permanent relief by using the Bath a few times; and the predisposition to take cold, as it is commonly termed, seems to be wholly removed. Obstructed perspiration, is certainly in our changeable climate, one of the most fruitful sources of disease, and any remedy that is capable of removing the predisposition to it, must be considered a great bleasing to mankind; and as such we do not hesitate to recommend the Medicated Vapor Bath.
