Boston whigs. Why the Age felt called upon to assume this ungracious and difficult task, we cannot imagine, unless it is because WEBSTER, in one of his heady speeches, gave in a sort of adhesion to Nativism, we cannot say; but, if we remember rightly, like his fa- eral for the county of Montgomery. mous boast about taking possession of the British territory, "some 4th of July," he modified this rash oration. as soon as he saw that it would probably get him into trouble. But be the motive of the writer in the Age torney General for the county of Washington. what it may, we hope that after his eruption of Pick has emitted, must have been very troublesome.
