PITTSBURGH, PA. FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 7, 1845.

PITTSBURGH BOARD OF TRADE. COMMITTEE FOR MARCH. N. B. Craig, J. F. Kelly, A. Wylie, Jr.

"R. H." will be good enough to call upon u We should like to speak with him. FLOTD WAGGAMAN, (nephew of ex President Tyler) passed through Pittsburgh on Wednesday evening with the Texas joint resolutions for Mr. Donelson, our Charge near this government. ERROR CORRECTED .- In the Account of Pitt township, published in our paper, the balance due by Mr. J. M. BRUSH, is set down on last year's settlement at $65 521-it should be $5.

THE PRESIDENT AT GUYANDOTTE. The papers along the route which was traversed by he President elect to Washington, relates some huingrous circumstances connected with his travels. The following from the correspondent of a New York paper, describing the reception at Guyandotte on the Ohio River is the best thing in this line that we have seen. The sketch has the appearance of being truth

"Among others came the old Postmaster, who made up to the President in a very open and frank manner. ing his hand, which Col Polk very politely received. Says the old man, addressing him, "Governor Polk, I am glad to see you, although I voted against you. I have been 26 years l'ostmaster at Guyandotte. I sinnedonce, and Amos Kendall turned me out. repented, and was restored to my office. I now hold it, or shall soon do so, at your good pleasure, and am ready to yield it whenever required."

The President replied, that "he considered the right of every man to his own opinions, honestly formed, and to think for himself, a sacred right, and therefore thought none the less of him for having voted against him: and was ready to believe that the office of Postmaster at Guyandotte was in very safe hands. But as the office of President, as well as that of Postmaster, was created by the people for their own convenience and not for you and me, who may happent to fill them. we are alone responsible to the people, under the Constitution, for the faithful manner in which we discharge our duties." This speech delivered by the President, seemed to strike the old Postmuster with great force, "Governor, give me your hand, them's just my senti-ments; and I believe in my soul, if I had only seen you five minutes before the election, I should have given you my vote." This caused a general laugh, in which the President cordially joined.

A TRUE PICTURE. The following picture of a southern planter, as we too often find bins, is from the graphic pen of our friend Wilson, of the Planter's Banner There is a By J.
