GONE! BY J. G. WHITTIER. Gone before To that unseen and silent shore, Shall we not meet as heretofore Some summer morning?"—LANB.

nother hand is beckoning us, Another call is given; And glows once more with Angel-steps
The path which reaches Heaven. Our young and gentle friend whose smile Made brighter summer hours, Amidst the frosts of autumn time

Has left us with the flowers. No paling of the cheek of bloom rewained us of decay;

No shadow from the Silent Land Fell round our sister's way. The light of her young life went down As sinks behind the hill

The glory of a setting star, Clear, suddenly and still. As pure and sweet, her fair brow seemed Eternal as the aky,
And like the brook's low song, her voice

A sound which could not die And half we deemed she needed not The changing of her sphere.
To give to Heaven a Shining One,

Who walked an Angel hero. The blessing of her quiet life Fell on us like the dew; And good thoughts, where her footsteps full, Like fairy blossoms grew.

Sweet promptings unto kindest deeds We read her face as one who reads

A true and holy book. The measure of a blessed hymn, To which our heafts could move; The breathing of an inward psalm,

We miss her in the place of prayer, And by the hearth-fire light; We rause beside her door to hear Once more her sweet "Good night!"

There seems a shadow on the day Her smile no longer choers; A dimness on the stars of night. Like eyes that look through tears. Alone unto our Father's will

One thought bath reconciled; That He whose love exceedeth ours Has taken home His child. Fold her, oh Futher! in thine arms And let her henceforth be

A messenger of love between

Our human hearts and Thee. Still let her mild rebuking stand Between us and the wrong, And her dear memory serve to make Our faith in Goodness strong.

And grant that she who, trembling, here Distrusted all her powers,
May welcome to her holier home The welf-beloved of ours.

FOR WHAT IS A MOTHER RESPONSIBLE! A mother is usually also a wife, and has the management of a family and a direct influence over those subordinate to her; she has the seat of authority and wisids the aceptre of government. From a position of entire independence she has risen to power and rank, and though her throne may be in a cottage, and her dominion the little world of household affairs, yet is she not the less really responsible than is that youthful of your Dyspeptic medicine with infinite benefit and she not the less really responsible than is that youthful queen who now sways a sceptre over the four quarters of the earth. PHYSICAL BEAUTY. A late English work, entitled "Vestiges of the Natural History of Creation," gives the following interesting fact in physiology—not altogether new, but certainly true according to general observation.

"The style of living is assertained to have a powerful effect in modifying the human figure in the course of generations, and this even in its concerns."

A Minutal Consumer Consume of generations, and this even in its osseous structure.

About two hundred years ago, a number of people were driven by a barbarous policy from the counties of Astrim and Down, in Ireland, toward the seacoast, Astrim and Down, in Ireland, toward the seacoast, where they have ever since been settled, but in unusually miserable circumstances, even for Ireland; and the consequence is, that they exhibit peculiar features of the most remarkable kind, projecting jaws with large open mouths, depressed noses, high check bones, and bow legs, together with an extremely diminuitye stature. These, with an abnormal slenderness of the limbs, are the outward marks of a low and barbarous condition all over the world; it is particularly seen is ty of the higher ranks in England is very remarkable being, in the main, as clearly a result of good externa conditions. "Coarse, unwholesome, and ill-prepared food," says Buffon, "makes the human race degenerate All those people who live miserably, are ugly and ill-the Office, and by News Boys.

He might have added that elegant and commodious dwellings, cleanly habits, comfortable clothing, and being exposed to the open air only as much as health requires, co-operate with food in increasing the elegance of the race of human beings.

A Duel in Germany .- At a late University celebration in Germany, a young lawyer, somewhat overcome with wine, made some remark disrespectful in regard to the King of Prussia. An officer in the service of the king took it up, and a duel ensued. Upon the ground the lawyer retracted the remark, and re-ceived three shors from his adversary, each time throwing away his own fire. Upon the fourth fire, the civiin received a mortal wound, but he had strength enough left to approach his adversary and exclaim:"I congratulate you; you will be made a captain."-The circumstances of the affair came to the ears the king. He very properly had the assassin degraded from his rank, and by society the fellow was as once sent to Coventry. The most characteristic fra-ture of the transaction is the advice given by the German newspapers, that the scoundrel had better blow his brains out upon the tomb of his victim.
