BUSINESS of PITTSBURGH .- Never have we seen business more animated in Pittsburgh than it is this Spring. On every side there are cheering indications of the rapid increase in population and prosperity of our city. Goods from the East, Cotton and Sugar from the South, and innumerable products from the West, cover our wharves and fill our numerous and spacious warehouses. We are told that twelve or fourteen boats were loading for ports below at one time, and the number of daily arrivals and departures is yet on the increase.

may rest assured that the facilities for transportation at this city, which were heretofore good, have been much improved, and they can have a choice of routes to the seaboard, and a choice of first class steamboats * to transport them to the West and Southwest. A man can travel from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, (500 miles) cheaper and quicker than he can travel the same distance in any other part of the world. The fare is scarcely over above 1 cent per mile, and sometimes goes below 2 of a cent per mile-and this includes all expenses. The ordinary time consumed in going down, is 36 hours, and in coming up 60 hours. The passage down, however, has been made in 30 hours, and
