The Daily Morning Post. PITTSBURGH, PA. WEDNESDAY MORNING, APRIL 16, 1845. PITTSBURGH BOARD OF TRADE. COMMITTEE FOR APRIL. Joshua Hanna, W. Thaw, J. W. Lightner. THE GAS.—Great credit is due to Mr. CRISP, and ble assistants, for saving the Gas Works, and for their successful labors in supplying the city with Gas.-Owing to their exertions, there was no interruption in the operations of the Works, and the city has been lit every night since the fire. FAST DAY .- The Mayor, in pursuance of a resolution of councils, has issued his Proclamation, setting BROWSSON'S QUARTERLY REVIEW .- The April number of this valuable work has been received, and GENEROUS. -- WM. BORIFACE, an old and well known draym in of this city, who has three or four drays, forbade his men to charge one cent for removing goods at the late fire. Such conduct deserves honorable mention, and contrasts nobly with that of the unblushing Gardiner's Submerged Propeller .- E P Gardimer, No 16, John street, hus invented an ingentous method of applying the principle of the Archimedean secrew in steamboars. The screw is placed in the swidter of the vessel, and protected from the lateral buve and intermediate of the water, which enters under the hull, registrapply to and is discharged in two currents at the stern. Several important objections to the ordinary application of the sorew are obviated by this method, among which are the danger of collision with hard substances, and the difficulty of steering the vessel. By the new method the vessel obeys the helm with even greater readings; then a ship under and er readiness than a ship under sail. Hunter's propoller has proved a failure. It is to be taken out, we learn, from several vessels to which it was first applied, and the design of putting it into a government vessel now building at Lake Eric, is said to be abandoned. We hope the public attention will bedirected to the improvement of Mr Gardiner, with a view of seeing whether it is not precisely what is desired.—N. Y. Eve. Post. HENRY BALDWIN INSTITUTE.
