Special Loan Agency. Unquestionably and incomparably the most im and its business men, can doubt for a moment, that the indomitable energy and enterprise of its population to a great extent, be sufficient to set in motion the prostrate industry paralyzed by the late calamity, if we had houses in which to resume business. The ground itself, now buried in the smoking ruins of the best business portion of the city, affords the amplest N consequence of the late columitous fire, and this day having been set apart by the city authorities security, for any amount of capital required for this as a fast day, the sale of 13 Lots of Ground on purpose, and this security might be enhanced by a Holmes' Hill, advertised to take place this afteron the ground, and a policy of insurance in any place designated by the lender himself and assigned to him by the borrower. But we have not, among ourselves the necessary capital unemployed, a million and a balf, invested in buildings alone, has been annihilated in a
